Hold Suspects in Auto Pyre Murders

SEEK TRAIL OF SLAYERS OF 4 IN MICHIGAN

Two Men Released Today, Two Others Remain in Custody.

EXONERATION INDICATED

Purse of One of Slain Girls Is Found Nine Miles from Murder Scene.

By The Associated Press

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 12—With a blood-stained purse and a .38 calibre bullet as slender clues, authorities today attempted to reconstruct the slaying early yesterday of four persons, two boys and two girls, on a tree-lined country road 12 miles southeast of here.

Four persons were arrested last night and today but two of them were released after making statements to Sheriff Jacob B. Andres. The identity of the two who were released was not revealed. Two others, Paul Keene, 49, and his brother, Lawrence, 38, still are in custody, although officials said the new developments tended to establish their claims of innocence.

Seen in Restaurant

Attempting to trace the movements of the four young people between the time they dropped out of sight in Ypsilanti and the discovery of their bodies in the burning automobile, deputy sheriffs learned today that the two couples were in a restaurant at Milan, 15 miles south of Ypsilanti, between 2 and 3 a. m. Tuesday.

Norman England, a waiter in the restaurant, said the boys and girls were in the restaurant about that time and that a man was with them.

As investigators attempted to reconstruct the slayings, they adopted the theory that the four victims, Thomas Wheatley, 16, of near Denton; Harry Lore, 18, of Ypsilanti, and Vivian Gold, 15, and Anna May Harrison, 16, both of Cleveland, had been slain by assailants who attacked them as they were parked in a "lover's lane" seven miles from the place where their bodies were found, in young Wheatley's burned automobile.

Purse Found

Vivian Gold's blood spattered purse was found on the south river road, three miles from Ypsilanti. The spot, authorities said, is frequented by "petting" couples. The purse was found yesterday morning by a salesman who saw it lying on the road but did not turn it over to officials until today.

Finding of a .38 calibre bullet in the body of young Lore last night established the theory that the two boys doubtless were slain before the automobile was set afire. Authorities now believe they were

COMMISSION ALLOWS ADDITIONAL SERVICE

Company To Add Trucks to Former Cleveland & Southwestern Route.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 12 — The state utilities commission, while indicating it would sanction no inroads into railroad earnings by truck lines, today authorized the Cleveland, Canton & Columbus Motor Freight company to add two tractor-trucks and two trailers to its lines operating over territory formerly served by the Cleveland & Southwestern Traction Co., which ceased operation in January of this year.

The company had asked permission to add ten tractor-trucks and fifteen five-ton trailers on the lines covering Youngstown, Warren, Akron, Canton, Medina, Norwalk, Elyria, Wooster Toledo, Findlay, Mansfield and Columbus.

The commission held that the operating territory of the former traction line was Mansfield, Bucyrus, Ashland and Cleveland, and that two tractor-trucks and two trailers would be adequate to serve the regions. It was added that no additional equipment would be approved to add competition to railroads. The commission's decision read "we are not ready to subscribe to the principle that trucks shall be permitted to make unlimited inroads upon rail lines."

Michigan authorities are mobilized in an effort to track down the slayers of Vivian Gold, 15, of Cleveland, left, above, and Anna Harrison, 17, of Cleveland, right, above. The two girls, with their escorts, Harry Lore, 18, of Ypsilanti, Mich., Miss Gold's cousin, and Thomas Wheatley, 16, of Belleville, Mich., were murdered, dumped into the back of the machine then burned beyond recognition. Farmers who were hastened to the scene, after hearing a struggle, saw an automobile leaving the scene.

PRIMARY STIRS UP EXCITEMENT

Steubenville Chief Center of Trouble; 50 Special Deputies on Duty.

"GENERAL" COXEY WINNER

Named for Massillon Mayoralty; Wets Claim Gain of One for Congress.

By The Associated Press

Candidates for two congressional vacancies and for municipal offices in many communities were known today from the results of yesterday's Ohio primary elections.

There were spirited contests in numerous towns and cities, and at Steubenville 50 special deputy sheriffs were called out to control the excitement. Two men were arrested there.

Voters in the First congressional district, which includes part of Cincinnati, nominated John H. Hollister, Republican, and State Senator David Lorbach, Democrat, as candidates to succeed the late Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house.

In the twentieth district, Cleveland, Democrats nominated Municipal Judge Martin L. Sweeney for the vacant congressional seat of the late Charles A. Mooney. Republicans nominated D. Hayden Parry. The district is strongly Democratic.

"General" Coxey Named

High spots of the municipal primaries included the nomination of "General" Jacob Coxey, who years ago led "Coxey's army" of unemployed to Washington, as Republican candidate for mayor of Massillon. The count of ballots was to show today whether Fred W. Justus or Fred Skolmuch, Democrats, would be Coxey's opponent.

General Coxey, now 76 years old, led five Republican opponents by a wide margin in the primary, and was considered the probable winner of the November election in this normally Republican community.

At Marietta, the Democrats nominated an 81-year-old Civil war

HOPE ALMOST GONE FOR U. S. AVIATORS

Extensive Search Fails to Locate Parker Cramer and Aid.

By The Associated Press

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 12—The American flier Parker Cramer and his radio operator, Oliver Pacquette, missing since Sunday on a hop from the Shetland islands to Copenhagen, were practically given up for lost today but the search will continue for two days.

The Danish survey ship Island Falk aided by two seaplanes, was extending its efforts over the whole of the western coast of Jutland in the hope the airmen had come down in an isolated spot. Danish, Norwegian and British vessels combed the waters between the Skaw and the southern coast of Norway yesterday without avail.

PUTS OUT LIGHTS

Snake Plunges Parts of Two States Into Darkness.

By The Associated Press

CARBONDALE, Ill., Aug. 12—A snake threw parts of two states into darkness for a time Monday night, linemen for the Central Illinois Public service company reported today.

They said the snake crawled to the top of a 55-foot electric light pole and stretched itself across two high tension wires, causing a short circuit that put out electric lights in a part of southern Illinois near Mounds and a section of western Kentucky.

The linesmen brought the snake which was electrocuted, here to support their story. The snake was described as a chicken or tree snake.

7 INJURED AS TORNADO HITS OHIO VILLAGE

Property Damage in Storm Near Lorain Estimated at Near $50,000.

POWER LINES DESTROYED

Heavy Downpour of Rain Accompanies Destructive Wind.

By The Associated Press

LORAIN, O., Aug. 12—Seven persons injured, four houses smashed and three houses knocked from their foundations, was the estimate early today of the damage done by a near tornado, which last night struck Sheffield lake village, five miles west of here.

Accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain, the storm swept off Lake Erie shortly before midnight. Suddenly attaining its peak, it lifted the houses from the ground, tumbled them and their occupants about, broke away many trees and telephone poles and did other damage.

Lights Put Out

All lights in the village were put out by the storm. Communication lines with other cities were broken. Streets were flooded and traffic impeded.

Four girls, occupants of a cottage which was overturned, were rescued from the wreckage by Fred Horn, a Sheffield fireman. They were injured.

Within a short time, villagers were able to call for ambulances and private cars to take the injured to St. Joseph's hospital in Lorain. Those in the hospital were:

Ira Robb, 51, of Toledo, broken leg and possibly internal injuries; A. J. Allison of Lorain cuts and bruises; Elsie Goddfried, 22, of Cleveland, internal injuries; Joseph Trusha, Jr., 22, of Cleveland, injuries undetermined.

Roberta Cambein, 17, of Monroe, Mich., injuries undetermined; Ruth Klaumer, 21 and Leona Headik, 21, both of Bedford, injuries undetermined.

Property Damage High

Property damage was estimated by Mayor Fred Hosford, at not less than $50,000.

The high wind missed Lorain, but streets here were flooded by rain, and citizens hearing of the violent storm at the nearby village recalled the tornado which struck Lorain in June, 1924, killing 93 persons and doing a property damage of $20,000,000.

An investigation is being made by postal inspectors and police.

Captain T. C. Horn of the union police reported the bomb consisted of lamp black and dynamite and that it exploded in the mail car containing three mail clerks and a railroad brakeman.

The car, bound for Atlanta, was between two cars containing valuable registered mail. No one could be found who saw the bomb tossed.

LINDBERGHS POISED FOR DANGEROUS HOP

Noted Couple Faces 1,067-Mile Flight, Most Hazardous of Oriental Trip.

By The Associated Press

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 12—Facing the most hazardous part of their 7,000 mile flight to the Orient, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today prepared for a 1,000-mile hop across the foggy waters of the Bering sea.

The flying couple brought their pontooned monoplane down at Safety bay, 21 miles east of here, at 4:40 p. m. (Marion time) yesterday after a 100-mile flight from Shismaref, on Kotzebue sound, where they were forced down by fog late Monday night on their Point Barrow-Nome hop.

Colonel Lindbergh said he expected to remain in Nome today and tonight, and that weather permitting, he would continue to Kataginak, Siberia, tomorrow.

Anxious To Leave

Extensive plans for entertaining the couple were made here after they had a long sleep.

"We are enjoying ourselves immensely," was the frequently repeated reply of Lindbergh and his diminutive wife to their many admirers.

Before retiring last night, Lindbergh told his hosts, Grant H. Jackson, the banker, and his wife, that they must be on their way by Thursday.

Waters of the Bering sea were too rough for safe landing at Nome yesterday and a radio message had been sent to Mrs. Lindbergh that the Nome river was a safe landing place.

While thronged on the ground and outconcession headed for the river, the plane circled overhead [illegible] A photographer [illegible]

Judge Hopkins was interested, too, in the fact that a man indicted on eight serious counts was let off with mild punishment, based on one count, because he had nine children and his wife was due to have another. She proved it by having it the next day, and the jury was merciful.

It seemed to ask: "If a man with nine children and another coming can't bootleg, who can?"

THE SHIPPING BOARD, about to sell some big ships, including the giant Leviathan, will make sure that American ships will continue to be owned by Americans and operated to create a commercial marine for the United States.

Fortunately the principal bidders are the Dollar Line and Herbert Feisshacker, on the Pacific coast; Kermit Roosevelt, son of the late President Roosevelt, and Vincent Astor, Mr. Bruce of Baltimore, a brother of Secretary Mellon's son-in-law, and others, on the East coast.

Both these groups are entirely American. Rumors to the contrary notwithstanding, there is no British or other foreign ownership or control in either of the groups.

The question is, Which will give, and guarantee, the best price? And it is hoped that consideration will be given by Mr. O'Connor of the shipping board and by the administration to any representations as to plans for cheap transportation for American travelers, particularly for American school teachers.

That the bullet hole through Sam Arcuri's left arm was received in a gun battle rather than in an attack from an unknown assailant developed in municipal court this morning when Arcuri was arraigned before Municipal Judge W. R. Martin on a charge of shooting with intent to kill.

Both Plead Not Guilty

Glen Runkle, arrested in connection with the shooting on west Center street Sunday afternoon is said by the police to have accompanied Arcuri to the scene of the shooting. Police say he took the gun after Arcuri was shot. Runkle was arraigned on a disorderly conduct charge this morning. Both entered pleas of not guilty and the judge reserved his decision.

Police this morning refused to say whether the name of the second party in the shooting was known. He disappeared after firing the shot that struck Arcuri in the arm and thus far the police have not succeeded in locating him.

According to the police, Arcuri went to the home of Sam Nicklosa on west Center street Sunday afternoon accompanied by Runkle and called a man from the house. As the two faced each other in the space between the Sam Nicklose house and the Nick Nicklose house, both drew guns and began shooting, police said today. Arcuri was the first to be struck and as the bullet penetrated his left arm, hostilities ceased and the other man disappeared.

Possible Motive

A feeling resulting from the arrest of Arcuri several weeks ago on a charge of assault of a nine-year-old girl, is believed by the police to have furnished at least a part of the motive for the shooting. The missing man, they say, was living with the family of the

COAL MEN CONSIDER APPEAL TO HOOVER

Believe That as Practical Engineer He Can Help Revive Mining Industry.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 13 — Some of the leading bituminous coal operators of the Pittsburgh district are considering a plan to lay their industrial troubles before President Hoover. As a practical engineer, they feel he may be able to give them some sound advice and to aid in other ways.

That the operators are considering presenting their problems to the President, probably in the form of a letter, was learned authoritatively today, following a statement by Joseph T. Miller, former assistant war time fuel administrator of the Pittsburgh area.

Miller expressed the view that the government should give assurances that something will be done to aid the distressed industry.

"The whole question is a matter for action by congress under the leadership of President Hoover," Miller added. "In the meantime, no doubt, the President can do something to bring at least temporary relief."

CLEMENCY REFUSED IN ALBERT B. FALL CASE

Former Secretary of Interior Must Serve Sentence for Oil Lease Bribe.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—Executive clemency was denied today to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, serving sentence of a year and a day for accepting a bribe.

Attorney General Mitchell announced that the application for clemency would not be granted by President Hoover.

The reason for the denial was given that none of the three prosecutors and judges whose opinions were asked on the petition advised clemency.

Follows Executive Order

A recent executive order signed by both President Hoover and Attorney General Mitchell provided that "when none of the persons so consulted advises clemency the papers shall not be sent to the President except in exceptional cases."

The attorney general said he had determined there was "no reason to make a special order submitting the papers to the President," and thus the plea in behalf of Fall was automatically denied.

Besides the year and a day sentence, Fall was fined $100,000. He began serving his sentence several weeks ago in Santa Fe, New Mexico.

A brief statement handed to newspapermen by Mitchell today

ADMITS WALDO STATION THEFT

Sheriff Gets Confession; Man in Jail Brother of One Wounded Sunday.

ORIGINAL STORY CHANGED

No Charges Have Been Filed Against Pair; One Still in Hospital.

Lawrence and Clement Reiter, brothers, of 915 Richford street in Toledo, will be charged with the attempted burglary of the Stoner gasoline station at Waldo early Sunday morning, it was announced today by Sheriff Charles C. Fye.

Makes Confession

Lawrence Reiter, alias Lawrence Forbes and Arnold "Shorty" Williams, whose silence regarding the attempted burglary was broken only by his denials of the sheriff's accusations, made a verbal confession yesterday afternoon, Fye said. He is 28 years old.

His brother, 26, who was wounded by two charges of buckshot from a shotgun in the hands of Ernest Stoner, owner of the station, is recovering in City hospital. He was shot when discovered at the station by Stoner. Lawrence Reiter escaped and was captured while attempting to hide in weeds near the station.

Until yesterday Lawrence Reiter maintained that he was in no way connected with the burglary and that he did not know the man who was wounded. He said he had been walking along the road when he became sleepy and laid down in the weeds were he was discovered. Yesterday afternoon, however, he admitted to Sheriff Fye that he was a brother of the man in City hospital.

Find Stolen Watch

Earlier in the week a watch found in his clothing was identified as one taken from the filling station during the burglary. This did not shake his original story, however, and he continued to deny all charges until yesterday.

The sheriff said the prisoner in jail talked only about the burglary at Waldo. Efforts to clear up other burglaries in this county failed.

No date has been set for filing charges against the two men pending the recovering of the wounded man.

WEATHER HOLDS UP LINDBERGH FLIGHT

Vacation Voyagers Decide To Take No Needless Risks on Hop Across Sea.

By The Associated Press

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 13—Lowering clouds and rain today delayed the departure of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, flying vacationers, for the Orient.

Lindbergh said it was "very doubtful" if the take-off for the Siberia coast would be made this morning as planned. The storm and rain continued unabated throughout the night.

In commenting on the change of their plans, for Lindbergh had announced after arriving here Tuesday afternoon that they "must be on their way," Thursday morning, he said they were in no great hurry and could well await clearer skies for the hazardous 1,067 miles flight from Nome to Karaginsk, across the Bering sea.

Mechanics have gone over their speedy monoplane in its berth on the waters of safety bay, 21 miles to the east, and the gasoline tanks have been filled to capacity, more than 500 gallons. The Lindberghs are ready to start on short notice.

Meanwhile, they have "thoroughly enjoyed" the Alaskan variety of entertainment given them by the citizens of this historic "gold rush" town.

Last night they were guests at an Eskimo "wolf dance," after having seen a few hours before an Eskimo blanket-tossing and wrestling exhibition.

All buildings in the capital will be searched and persons found with arms sent to Cabana fortress, it was announced after police chiefs conferred with Dr. Octavio Zubizarreta, interior secretary.

PLACE COTTON PLANS IN HANDS OF GOVERNORS

Heads of Southern States Urged To Direct One-Third Crop Destruction.

FARM BOARD PROGRAM

Chairman and Aid Say Fate of Southern Industry Rests with State Heads.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—Governors of cotton states today were charged by Chairman Stone and Carl Williams, cotton members of the farm board, with direct responsibility for organizing the suggested campaign to destroy a third of the South's cotton to avert disaster.

Promising every cooperation, the board officials said financial salvation of the southern farmer depended entirely upon the attitude of the chief executives of the 14 states to whom the proposal was made yesterday.

The crop destruction plan was suggested on the board's own initiative. It was said at the White House today that President Hoover was not instrumental in drawing it up.

If the suggestion meets with approval both Stone and Williams foresaw a gain of millions of dollars for the south.

The details of instituting the plan, Stone said, would be left entirely with the governors. What their reaction will be is not yet known. Stone said their replies would not be made public until they were all in.

Telegrams were sent late yesterday to governors of 14 cotton producing states urging adoption of the proposition. Within a short time, reports reaching Washington said the offer was not viewed with favor in many southern regions.

Chairman Stone dispatched the offer after conferring with directors of the American Cotton Cooperative association and the cotton stabilization corporation on the agricultural department's 1931 crop estimate of 15,584,000 bales. The forecast sharply reduced the staple's market price.

If growers plow under every third row, under cultivation, Stone said, the American cooperative association would be asked to withhold 2,000,000 bales. The board through the stabilization group, holds 1,300,000 bales of the 1929 crop.

Stone Sites Effect

Stone said the program, "if fully carried out by southern farmers as well as by ourselves, will mean reduction of total supply by at least 4,000,000 bales and withholding from

Uniontown, Pa. Woman Held for 'Dream Murder'

By International News Service

CLIFTON MILLS, W. Va., Aug. 13—A "dream murder" in which the murderess, an attractive matron of Uniontown, Pa., was impelled by hallucinations to take the life of the postmaster of this little village, was revealed today with the capture of Mrs. Evelyn Harader, 42, mother of a 10-year-old school girl.

Mrs. Harader, sobbing hysterically, was taken into custody by Deputy Sheriff W. C. Roth who drove from Kingwood to Clifton Mills on receipt of word of the tragedy.

The victim was Cecil R. Michael, 25, married and the father of three children.

Mrs. Harader was quoted by Deputy Roth as saying she received a "message" to kill Michael. Roth said she told him she arose from bed, procured a revolver, and attired only in scantily night clothing walked to Michael's little confectionery store and postoffice and fired one shot, Michaels died almost instantly.

Before dying, he gasped out the name of Mrs. Harader as his assailant.

Roth said: "Mrs. Harader said she had been guided by a 'code message' received while she slept. She had no ill feeling for Michael. She even showed me the gun with one bullet missing."

Roth took Mrs. Harader to a state hospital for examination by alienists. He said murder charges already have been preferred.

GANDHI NOT TO ATTEND MEET

India National Congress Withdraws from London Conference.

WILL NOT AFFECT PLANS

England To Continue Discussion of Problems Despite Absence of Mahatma.

By The Associated Press

BOMBAY, India, Aug. 13—The Indian National congress today decided definitely not to participate in the second round table conference on Indian affairs at London this fall.

Mahatma Gandhi's son, Devidas Gandhi, said as he left the meeting of the congress working committee:

"There is absolutely no chance that my father will go to London."

The committee's decision to have no part in the conference was based upon charges of "repeated serious breaches of the Delhi pact by the provincial government."

Gandhi served notice on Viceroy Willingdon several days ago that he would not participate in the conference unless he was assured that peasants in arrearars with taxes or rents would not be molested by revenue authorities.

Gandhi received a reply to his ultimatum from the viceroy today and it was understood the answer was disappointing.

The contents of the communication were carefully guarded until the congress working committee could consider its text. Asked whether he would sail Saturday with other delegates, Gandhi replied "God alone knows."

Should the congress reconsider and should Mahatma Gandhi decide to come to London later, it was said, there is no doubt that he would be admitted to the conference discussions.

AUTO PYRE DEATH GUN FOUND; MAN HELD AS OWNER

Identification of Weapon That Took Life of Harry Lore Provides Most Important Clue in Hunt for Slayers of Four.

SUSPECT WITH PRISON RECORD QUIZZED

Said To Closely Resemble Man Seen with Murder Victims Day Before Discovery of Bodies in Burned Auto.

By The Associated Press

YPSILANTI, Mich., Aug. 13—Herbert Smith, said by police to be the owner of the gun used to slay Harry Lore, one of four young persons whose burned bodies were found on a country road near here early Tuesday, was arrested here today. He was being grilled by a dozen Detroit and Ypsilanti officials.

Smith, police said, closely resembles the man reported seen in a restaurant early Tuesday with Lore Thomas Wheatley, Vivian Gold and Anna May Harrison, two and a half hours before their bodies were found in a blazing automobile eight miles from here. They said Smith had a prison record.

Two other men, companions of Smith in a roadside speakeasy the night before the shooting, are being sought. Their names were not revealed.

Smith's arrest followed the finding of the gun which Detroit ballistics experts said was used in the shooting of Lore. Sergeant Ernest Klavitter of Ypsilanti police said that Smith's landlord turned the gun over to officials when he read of the slayings.

A few hours after questioning of Smith began, officials announced that a second man, a Negro, had been taken into custody and also was being questioned with Smith.

Prosecutor Harry S. Toy of Wayne county gave a short statement to newspapermen in which he said "we have the man who admits owning the gun with which Lore was shot. The man is a Negro."

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 13 — A revolver turned over to prosecuting officials by the chief of police of Ypsilanti today was identified by police ballistic experts as the gun with which Harry Lore, one of the four young persons slain early Tuesday on a country road near here, was shot to death.

Most Promising Clue

Finding of the gun was the outstanding clue by which authorities hope to find the slayer or slayers of the four young persons, who ranged in age from 15 to 17.

A roughly-dressed man about 30 years old, who was reported seen early Tuesday with the two couples in a restaurant in Milan, and who paid the bill, was sought. A suspect, partly answering the description, was picked up in Cleveland early today and held for questioning.

Two hours and a half after the appearance at the restaurant, the bodies were found in the burning automobile, eight miles away.

The man arrested in Cleveland had a Michigan road map in his pocket, with the name Ypsilanti marked with a pencil.

Detectives discovered the man sleeping on a truck which had just arrived here from Chicago. He was held for questioning.

The arrested man was roughly dressed and appeared to be of below-average mentality, detectives said.

The suspect said he boarded the truck while it was enroute to Cleveland from Chicago. The detectives said he told them he had been "up in Michigan" and that he had passed through Ypsilanti. His answers were evasive when they tried to learn what he had been doing there.

Four other young men who were riding the same truck also were questioned.

Important Finds

If the man sought is not one of the killers, officers said, at least he could clear up the mystery of how the young couples had spent the hours after 8 p. m. Monday, when they last were seen in Ypsilanti, the home community of the two boys. The girls, whose homes were in Cleveland, were visiting the Lores.

There were other clues in the case, all apparently conflicting.

Miss Gold's purse, bearing stains believed to be blood, were found on a road six miles from the funeral pyre. There were tracks of a second automobile which had skidded to a stop in front of the death car. There was a note handed by a Negro woman to a policeman in Ypsilanti, containing the names of two men whom she said were the killers. And there were blood stains found on a clue

FREIGHT DEPOT SAFE LOOTED

Burglars Pound Off Combination in Big Four Office on Mill Street.

THIEVES GET $54 IN CASH

Believe Men Picked Time When Trains Were Passing To Kill Sound.

Gaining an entrance by breaking a section of glass from a window, safe crackers early last night pulled the first daylight safe cracking job in the last several years and made their getaway with $54.35 in cash from the office at the Big Four freight house on Mill street.

Selecting a time when L. D. Rhoads, night clerk at the depot, had gone to the west end of the yards to check cars with the Erie, the burglars broke a section of glass from the upper sash of a south window, and released the catch on the lower window.

Using a heavy hammer, which they took away with them, the safe-crackers hammered the combination from the safe and by manipulating the bolts opened the door. Aside from the cash and $4 worth of stamps, nothing was taken from either the safe or the office. It is thought the burglars selected a time when a train was passing to deaden the sound of the pounding.

The burglary was discovered by Rhoads when he returned shortly before 7 p. m. He notified police who a short time later arrested two men who gave their homes as Pittsburgh, Pa. They were held all night but were released this morning when they proved a satisfactory alibi.

That the robbery was committed by someone familiar with the details of the office, is the belief of railroad officials. The fact that it was committed at a time when an amount of money larger than is usually kept in the safe over night was on hand, together with the picking of a night when the watchman was absent, is the reason for this belief.

Marion Man Prefers Alligators as Pets; Has Thrill in Training

Perhaps the only person in Marion to own two alligators became the proud possessor of a third this morning when it arrived by express from Daytona Beach, Fla.

William Smith, Negro, of 228 Barnhart street, who has been intensely interested in snakes, alligators and other forms of wild life since his boyhood days in the Allegheny mountains, received his third alligator this morning in a wooden box about two feet long and 18 inches wide.

Has Had Two

He has had two alligators at his home for the last two months. They have become quite tame, he said, due to almost constant attention and care. The two reptiles are each about 11 inches long, and the latest arrival measures 22 inches from head to tail, and about six or seven inches in circumference.

The alligators are kept in a pen in the yard during the day and taken into the house at night until they become accustomed to the Ohio climate. During the last few weeks they have been quite at home in the heat, Smith said. The winter care of the reptiles will vary somewhat from this style, he said, as he is planning to build a shed with a pool on the inside for further training.

Smith is hoping to train the gators to perform stunts on a chute into a pool of water, and is pleased with the progress he has made with the first two. The owner expects to exhibit his pets when they become adept at their tricks. According to Smith, he can pick them up and carry them around at will. The newest addition, however, will be reluctant to allow this personal attention, as it is untamed and quite willing to express its dislike for handling. Smith expects to tame it in about two months, as he did with the others.

Smith has ordered two reptiles from the southwestern part of the country which he expects to receive the latter part of this month. One is a black diamond rattlesnake and the other is a gila monster, a type rarely brought into this part of the country. With these additions, Smith hopes to have a collection that will keep him busy caring for them. Persons desiring to view the collection are welcome to do so, Smith said.

Life and Death Fight Faced by Farm Board

Already Under Way To Introduce Legislation That Would Abolish Body; Senator Reed Drafting Measure.

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12. (INS)—On all sides, the harrassed farm board is going to fight for its life in the session of congress.

Enemies hope to abolish it, its few friends are dubious saving it.

Senator Reed, Republican of Pennsylvania, a staunch administration supporter, who some time ago voiced the opinion that the board had proved a failure, let it be known today that he is now drafting the legislation to send to its work. Reed will turn the board's tangled affairs over to the department of justice for liquidation.

Shared by Others

Reed's opinion that the board has proved a failure is shared by a good many of his fellow senators who are seldom to be found in agreement with him on any subject. To substantiate their charges of failure, they point out that when the board was created two years ago and given $500,000,000 with which to solve the agricultural "farm problem" wheat was selling around $1.50 a bushel and cotton at several times its present value.

After prodigous labor and the expenditure of all the millions which congress provided for the great agricultural experiment, it is pointed out that wheat and cotton are at the lowest prices in more than half a century.

The government estimate of a 14,000,000 bale cotton crop on Saturday was the final straw that broke the back of the cotton market. It followed the bumper wheat crop which sent prices plunging to the lowest point in four decades.

The board's defenders may well—and do—retort that it wasn't the board which was responsible for the price collapse; it was overproduction, for which the producers themselves are to blame. The board has consistently counselled the farmers to reduce their acreage.

"Goat" Mentable

Nevertheless, it is inevitable in such circumstances that "a goat" must be provided, and it now appears that the board is to be it.

Criticism of the board comes from almost every point of the compass. The West is disgruntled because of the wheat situation; the South has been almost prostrated by the sensational crash of cotton which followed Saturday's crop estimate; the drys have been gunning for the board for some time because of its financing of wine concentrates under the guidance of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt; the industrial East has never been more than tolerant of the whole setup because the East doesn't participate in many of the millions that have been dispensed by the board.

There is scarcely any doubt that serious efforts will be made to resurrect the old equalization fee and debenture plans. These plans were born in the West and commanded such wide support in both houses that the White House had to veto one of them, the equalization fee, three times.

The sponsors of these measures are now in the position to say to the White House: "your plan has failed, now let us try ours."

When the Eagles drum and bugle corps leaves this city Thursday to attend the state and national conventions of Eagles in Toledo this week, it will be the fifteenth annual convention in which it has taken part. If it should fail to be included in the prize winners it will be the second time in only in the 15 for such an occurrence, according to Fred Preuninger, leader and drum major of the corps.

Organized in 1916 as the Eagle drum and fife corps, the group has attended every state and three national conventions and with the exception of the convention held in this city when it did not compete, has never failed to be among the prize winners.

Claude Baker was the drum major and Charles Patterson, the leader of the first corps. The personnel included Hiram Schneemilch, Vern Snyder, Vane Ireland J. E. Mills, M. Van Buskirk, Roy Riddle, Milo Brady, C. D. Fail, Benner Bent and George Hachton, bugles, and Oral Hill, Robert Emerson, R. Geddis, Fred Eaton, D. T. Hamilton, Freeman Huntsman, Albert Bent, Thomas O'Connell, Harley Seiter and Wilfred DeLourne, snare drums, Reuben Snyder and Patrick Sweeney, bass drums and Carl Massey and James Smith, cymbals.

Fred Preuninger, drum major since April 1929, takes his drum-majoring serious. A drum major he said today, in addition to being responsible for the personal appearance of his men, is also responsible for their safety during parades. To have one of the men injured during a parade is a serious reflection of the drum major. The drum major must also be acquainted with all information the location of the reviewing stand the location of the reviewing stand and all other details of the parade.

TWO WOMEN IN BUCYRUS RACE

Democratic Mayor Is Chosen To Head Ticket for Fifth Term.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Aug. 12—Mayor Arthur Schuler, now completing his fourth term as Mayor of Bucyrus, again was given the support of Bucyrus Democrats at Tuesday's primaries when he was chosen by a large majority to head his party at the November election when he will be opposed by former Common Pleas Judge J. Walter Wright.

Five contests appeared on the Democratic ticket. With no contests scheduled on the Republican ticket winners knew in advance who they would oppose. The names of Miss Constance Keller, present city auditor and Mrs. Esther Dobbins, city treasurer will also appear on the Democratic ticket in November by virtue of their victories over opponents. Miss Keller was opposed by Henry Fehring in the contest for auditor, and Mrs. Dobbins was opposed by Arch Lea. Mrs. Mae Klopefer, present city treasurer was not a candidate for nomination.

Balloting in the city was comparatively light during the morning hours but became brisk later in the day resulting in one of the heaviest votes cast at a primary in the city for years.

Candidates in the five Democratic contests and their respective votes are as follows: mayor, Arthur Schuler, 1107; George Birk, 726 and H. O. Sharp, 165. Auditor, Constance Keller, 1115; Otto Fehring, 830. Treasurer, Esther Dobbins, 1021, Arch Lea, 798. By The Associated Press

HAVANA, Aug. 12—The revolutionary movement swung back towards Havana today as the insurgents turned their efforts to the destruction of natural resources.

Police said a group of rebels had attempted to blow up the water reservoir at Regla, just across the bay from the capital, but were surprised and driven off by Loyalist soldiers.

STRONG EXECUTORS SELL CHICAGO NEWS

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 12—Control of the Chicago Daily News was purchased today from the executors of the Walter A. Strong estate by Frank Knox, publisher of the Manchester, N. H., Union Leader, and Theodore T. Ellis, of Worcester, Mass., manufacturer and former publisher of the Worcester Telegram Gazette.

Mr. Knox assumed his duties today as president and publisher of the News. Mr. Ellis will be vice president of the corporation and a member of its board of directors.

TWO CANDIDATES OUT OF RACE POLL GOOD VOTE

TWO candidates who withdrew from the races after the ballots were printed received a good many votes. Bert J. Shelton, present county treasurer, who withdrew from the race when opportunities for other connections developed, received 80 votes. Ralph E. Grubaugh received 300 votes in the Democratic race for auditor after withdrawing to accept a position as state bank examiner.

One candidate whose name was written in was nominated for office. He is Frank Stanley whose name will appear on the November ballot for Republican councilman from the fifth ward councilman. He received 112 votes. Harry Topliff had his name written in twice for the same position.

Yesterday's primary did not result in a Democratic nominee being named for the office of city solicitor although the names of three attorneys were written in. Theodore B. Ochs received 14 votes, Ben F. Roller, one and Howard Guthery, four. Their names will not be certified as they did not receive eight per cent of the votes cast as required by law.

Each vote cast yesterday will cost the county approximately 71 cents, it was estimated last night at the office of the board of elections. At the city primary two years ago the cost of each vote was nearly $2.

It did not take long for the precinct election officials to complete their work. Precinct D of the First ward reported in at 7:18 p. m., the first to complete its work. The last precinct to reach the board of elections office reported at about 9 p. m. Unofficial totals were available a half-hour later.

Members of the board of elections will get together for their semi-annual chicken dinner Thursday night. The board also is scheduled to hold a meeting that night.

Interested voters called The Star several hundred times last night for information on how their favorite candidates were progressing in the various races. Members of The Star staff stationed in the office and the board of elections headquarters tabulated votes and kept running totals until the final precinct reports were turned in.

The calls were so numerous that persons on the staff could think only in the terms of Jones and Phillians. One worker answered the telephone and, upon being asked who was speaking, without hesitation answered "Jones for the Democrats and Phillians for——," and then he discovered his mistake.

POST MEETS AT FIRE STATION

Legion Members Are Guests of Chief and Tuesday Crew.

Members of Bird-McGinnis Post No 162 American Legion, were guests of Fire Chief McFarland and members of Tuesday's crew at the central fire station, Tuesday night.

In reply to a letter sent by Adjutant J. W. Llewellyn of the post to Chief McFarland several weeks ago congratulating him on the 100 per cent membership of firemen in the Legion, the chief extended an invitation to the post to hold their Tuesday night meeting at the central station, their own meeting place in the dugout being used as a voting place.

Chairs had been arranged in the large room at the rear of the apparatus room and the attendance was one of the largest in the last several months. At the conclusion of the meeting, the chief and his men, served ice cream and cake and the visitors were taken on a tour of inspection of the station. The tour ending in the dormitory on the second floor, firemen sprung the trap doors at the brass poles and the guests were given the choice of sliding down the poles or remaining in the dormitory. They slid, firemen said this morning.

Final instructions to the delegates and alternates who will represent the local post at the department convention to open in Cleveland this week, was given at the meeting. The convention will start Saturday and will continue until Tuesday night.

Delegates will be C. C. Caldwell, commander of the post, J. W. Llewellyn, adjutant and V. E. Goff and the alternates will be Grant E. Mouser, Jr., and Ralph Hull.

Daily Proverb—"Avarice and fidelity can not dwell together in the same house."

So great is the glut in the Baltimore banana market that that fruit is being sold to trucksters at a truckload for a quarter, while some steamships are dumping their cargoes of fruit into the bay. Why are the big bargains always in some other area?

Mahatma Gandhi put his finger on the weakness of the campaign of India for Indians, when he asked an audience in Bombay: "How can home rule be won with sect fighting sect within the nation?' It's on this weakness that Great Britain counts to hold her place in the Indian sun.

President Charles L. Lawrence, of the Aeronautical chamber of commerce, predicts that the air transport industry will absorb more than $5,000,000 worth of airplanes before the close of the year. At the rate planes have crashed of late, it will come mighty near having to, if it is to survive as an industry.

Perhaps no better illustration of the seriousness of the crime situation in this country could be offered than the fact that the conviction of "Legs" Diamond in New York City, on a charge the maximum sentence for which is four years and a fine of $11,000, has caused editorial expressions of felicitation in practically all the big city papers of the country.

The new postoffice building to be constructed in Chicago, which will be the largest building in the world used entirely for postal work, will cost when completed $24,675,000, according to the estimates of treasury experts. Well, it's conceivable that a fair-sized building may be erected for a sum like that, even under government inspection and direction.

Senator Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee, asks Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, to make apology for "inferentially" charging him with inconsistency in the tariff bill legislation. Doesn't the Tennessee senator know that it's against senatorial ethics to apologize for anything? Anyway, if Senator McKellar wasn't inconsistent in tariff matters, his case is so exceptional that he shouldn't blame the Michigan senator for classing him with the almost universal run of lawmakers.

Representative Putnam, of Arkansas, wants President Hoover to act in an "emergency" and call an extra session of congress to stabilize prices, fixing a minimum of twenty cents a pound for cotton, a dollar a bushel for either wheat or corn and a dollar a barrel for oil. It's a wonder some of these patriots seeking free publicity never think of the hardships being suffered by other than cotton and grain growers and producers of oil. For the looks of the thing they might at least make a bluff at being interested in the welfare of business men generally and industrialists.

Ground for Protest.

There yet seems to be decided uncertainty regarding how, where, when and by whom the state tax stamps are to be attached to cigaret packages when the new law goes into effect next month.

Notice has gone out that the stamps are to be sent to the treasurers of the various counties of the state for distribution, which might be taken to indicate the affixing is to done by the jobbers or dealers in whose hands the cigarets may be at the time of the going into effect of the law.

The point was raised, some days ago, that the stamps would not adhere to the cellophane jackets now utilized by manufacturers to keep the contents of the packages fresh, and that it would be necessary to remove this covering and affix the stamps to the original packages. This caused such a protest, that an order was issued from the governor's office holding up the removal of the cellophane wrappers until the matter could be investigated.

Manufacturers and jobbers held that they should not be put to the needless expense of removing the cellophane from the cigarets they might have on hand at the beginning of the coming month when adherence of the stamps to the cellophane can be secured by passing a piece of steel wool or sandpaper over it. The point was well taken, and manufacturers might have gone further and set out that it would be unjust to force them to make and stamp packages for sale in Ohio, which they would have to do if stamps had to be affixed to the inside paper wrapper, or abandon the use of cellophane on all cigarets sold in this state.

The cigaret tax was authorized by the general assembly for the purpose of raising revenue, and not for the purpose of penalizing those who manufacture or sell cigarets. To put them to needless trouble or expense would be unfair, and inevitably work toward added expense to cigaret smokers, who will bear more than their fair share of the cost of government without any unnecessary expense being added to it.

Might Disarmament Hasten War?

The views on disarmament recently expressed by Frank H. Simonds before the Williamstown Institute of Politics were of more than ordinary interest here in Marion, not so much because of his reputation as a writer on world and especially European subjects, as owing to the somewhat extended personal acquaintance he has here as the result of his frequent visits to this city in his younger days.

It is the contention of Mr. Simonds that disarmament in the present state of world affairs might serve to precipitate war rather than advance the cause of world peace. Looking over the European continent, he sees 200,000,000 arrayed against each other, the German, Austrian and Hungarian peoples on one side and the people of France, Poland, Jugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Roumania on the other. He sees the former resolved not to accept the treaty of Versailles as a definite settlement and the latter resolved not to permit any revision, and he holds that while there is no war of arms in being, there is a war of thought, saying: "As long the the Poles and the Germans stand on either side of an imaginary line, in their present frame of mind, the Vistula is a battle front, just as much as the Aisne or the Somme was in the World war." Citing that policy is fundamental and that what is accidental is the means employed to carry out the purpose, he went on to say:

"In point of fact, arms are becoming too expensive and dangerous to be used. The French occupation of the Ruhr was terribly expensive and it upset French national life. But the French occupation of the mark—if I may use that term—was inexpensive, efficient, deadly. It foreshadows a new era in war. It is a variation of what the League of Nations used to call a peaceful blockade. You do not shoot your enemy, but just as certainly you do fight him and you do smash him to the point where he surrenders his policy to yours, and that is all war was ever intended to do. Take all their arms away from the French and leave them their money and their present purpose and you will have war, provided a similarly disarmed Germany is at once resolved to scrap this treaty."

This is why the French insist on increasing their armaments till they feel that safety is assured, and this is why he holds that when the United States appears at the Geneva conference and presses for disarmament we will be just as surely anti-French as we were anti-German during the World war, for we will be asking the opponents of Germany "to give up what they consider their most vital interests—security for France, territorial integrity for Poland, existence itself for Czechoslovakia."

Granting that events have not always offered a 100 per cent. reflection of his views; granting that his prophesies have not always been realized, there is no escaping the fact that Frank Simonds has gained wide recognition as a close observer of European affairs and a faithful recorder of European conditions, and as such his views on the possible outcome of disarmament are worthy of consideration.

There must be something radically wrong with the business methods of Frances White, the actress. She has filed a petition in bankruptcy in which she lists her liabilities at but $13,189.92 and her assets at $7,500. The idea of having assets of $7,500 at the time of filing a bankruptcy petition! It's absolutely contrary to all rules and practice!

Weighing the Votes.

A great people, the French. But what a sense of humor! Voting in the French chamber of deputies is to be done by means of an electrical device which ejects small coins on the two platforms of an ordinary balance when a button is pressed. Jingle, jingle, jingle. The ayes have it.

This is too direct for an American legislative body, particularly the pointed reminder of those coins jingling out to make the balance platform ride down. And if it weren't that, it would be too efficient. Imagine congress without any opportunity for log-rollers, pork-barrel divers and straddlers to manipulate the roll call. Imagine the blank political future of the congressman who couldn't prove by the Congressional Record that he was on the right side when the issue came to a vote.

What the United States needs, what Ohio needs, what every American legislative body needs, is a device that will register each member's vote and name in indelible ink on indestructible paper and at the same time flash the news over the country so the folks back home will know immediately just where their man stands. And heaven forbid that there be even a suggestion of a jingle in the mechanism anywhere!

Displaying a sign on each house reading: "Unfair Demands of the Operators' Union Closed This Theater," the managers of 104 of the smaller movie places of Chicago have made good their threat to shut down unless the union receded from its insistence on two operators in each booth. Not only must the union shoulder responsibility for throwing 5,000 employes out of work, but it also sees the old stock-in-trade weapon of "unfair" used against it. The thing isn't regular.

The largest ship lock in the world, that at Bremerhaven, Germany, was opened to traffic, this week, when the Bremen passed through it. Twelve hundred and twenty feet long and 197 feet wide, it will be quite a time before the shipping world undertakes construction beyond its dimensions. The Germans have shown more wisdom in this regard than has been evinced in the construction of many of the locks of the world.

Senator David A. Walsh, of Massachusetts, criticizes the policy of the appropriation of huge sums by the federal, state and municipal governments for construction of public works without thought of how the money is to be repaid, holding that such a course is mortgaging the future unjustly. True! Very true! But we have been mortgaging the future for so long, now, that the thought of a few years more isn't likely to arouse public consciousness to the injustice of the thing at this late date.

BRUENING'S TRIUMPH.

The German republic is saved—for the time being, at any rate. Yesterday's plebiscite in Prussia whereby the Reich governments Nationalist, Fascist and Communist foes hoped, by making common cause, to bring down the Socialist-Centrist regime enthroned in Germany's principal state, failed of its purpose. That purpose was to precipitate a dissolution of the Prussian diet, the expulsion of the Braun ministry, general elections and the entry of a reactionary government into power

The plebiscite to be carried would have required a clear majority of the Prussian electorate or roundly 13,500,000 votes. According to the latest returns, a little less than 9,800,000 "yes" ballots were cast. The anti-republican coalition, therefore, fell some 3,700,000 short of the poll it would have had to roll up in order to win the day. Instead the day was lost.

Europe and the world at large awaited the result with justifiable trepidation. "Who holds Prussia holds the Reich" was the slogan with which the Steel Helmets, the Hitlerites and the Communist reds marched. They planned not only to mobilize their own full strength, which they evidently did not do, but to derive support from other parties, recently filled with discontent by the stern emergency measures taken by the Hindenburg-Bruening government to bring order out of Germany's economic chaos. Had the forces of reaction triumphed yesterday, their later victory in Reich elections seemed an almost inescapable certainty. The work of rehabilitation, which the Germans have just undertaken amid the good will of the whole world, would have been brought down in ignominious collapse.

The tactics of the Reich authorities in advising their adherents to boycott the plebiscite were vindicated. Relatively only a few of them ignored Chancellor Bruening's advice to remain away from the polls. The Berlin central government has weathered a storm of undeniably menacing dimensions in warding off the attack on the existing order in Prussia. When the regular elections take place in May, 1932, the elements that are loyal to the republic will enter the gray panoplied with new prestige as a result of the decisive battle fought in Prussia on August 9.—Washington Star, August 10.

THE ORACLE SPEAKS.

The sincerity of the belief held by those professors who investigated the Miller dismissal at Ohio State university that that institution lies degraded and ashamed before the eyes of the academic world is not to be doubted. Living in an aura of super-respectability, deference and indulgence, as they do, most professors become imbued with the idea that they are slightly above the practical, ignorant world and are, therefore, residents of some semi-Olympus where the hands of mere mortals never reach. For the uninitiate the grasp one by the collar and shake him is a sacrilege and anathema and is to be punished by scorn and haughty indignation.

The professors can not be blamed for reporting as they did. They were expected to. The sacred name of education had been insulted. The very idea of a board of trustees daring to impose its wish upon any member of the ethereal fraternity for any reason whatsoever, or for no reason, is an affront. And so, as reluctant as they were to do it, they were forced to call down the curse upon this illy-guided institution. Nevermore can Ohio State raise its head among universities. Until it repents of its sin, the best talent and brains of the educational world will be denied it, and all its students will suffer from an unsatisfied desire for knowledge. That is the inevitable end. Woe is it. But professors will have no other authority before them, even in the trustees above them, or the people below them.

As comprehensive as the report was, the investigating committee apparently forgot to mention one thing—the dance at Wilberforce university.—Ohio State Journal.

Fake "Cures" for Cancer.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In a recent radio speech made by Lord Moynihan, president of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, he warned against "fake" cancer cures. With great sincerity and earnestness, this eminent surgeon warned against the dangers of unscientific and unconfirmed methods of cure.

Many persons who know they have cancer fail to avail themselves of the opportunity to rid themselves of this dread disease. Instead, they delay, trying all sorts and means of treatment, but never the correct one.

By various newspaper announcements, the American Medical association has endeavored to warn the public of this danger. But there continue to exist many unauthorized institutions offering so-called "cures" for cancer.

Cancer is a dreadful disease. But in most cases, if recognized early and treated early, it can be entirely eradicated.

Statistics issued by the British ministry of health indicate that in cases of cancer of the breast operated in the early stages of the disease, 90.1 per cent. of the patients were well ten years after operation. It was pointed out that when the disease was neglected and surgery resorted to at a late sage, 94.4 per cent. failed to recover.

As suggested by Lord Moynihan, cancer in its early stage is a local condition. This is why surgery has accomplished such great results within recent years.

Treatment is of little or no avail when the victim neglects treatment and refuses to be operated on in the beginning. After suffering torture, in desperation, the patient may permit the surgeon to operate. Unfortunately, it may then be too late to bring about a cure.

The importance of periodic health examinations is demonstrated by the attitude of the public toward this dreaded disease. Because of such an examination the condition is likely to be discovered when there is little annoyance or consciousness of trouble. When immediately operated upon, such cases make satisfactory recovery.

It is surprising to learn of the number of intelligent persons who become panicky and refuse operation. Undoubtedly, this is because of fear of the "knife."

What a mistake! Really an anesthetic and a minor operation are not to be dread. I know this is the fact.

Guards Great Britain's Health.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

It is not unlikely that few of the readers of this article have ever heard of Sir Robert Robertson. And yet there can be no doubt that, from the standpoint of health, sanitation, value and public welfare he is one of the most important public functionaries in Great Britain. He is in charge of the government laboratory. Under Sir Robert, whose title is chief government chemist, is a staff of some 200 chemists. The variety of work done and benefits accomplished by this government bureau is little short of amazing.

A great source of revenue to the British government is derived from the tax on tobacco. All tobacco entering the ports of Great Britain has to pay duty. In the case of manufactured tobacco, the government takes good care that the legal limit of thirty-two per cent. of moisture is strictly adhered to. This, of course, includes the natural moisture of the leaf, which varies from thirteen to seventeen per cent. Any manufacturer who attempts to sell adulterated tobacco is not simply warned, but is heavily fined.

Another great feature of this department of the government is to protect the public from adulterated food. There is no telling how far back in history the practice of food adulteration goes. It is of record that flour was adulterated in England as long ago as the reign of King John. This whole matter of government scrutiny of food and drink, with respect to adulteration, goes back only as far as 1860.

The first act passed by parliament accomplished little, at the means for enforcing the provisions of the act were inadequate. But in 1875 there was passed the sale of food and drugs act, which was a serious step toward curbing adulteration. The work of the general government is supplemented by local authorities who appoint public analysists, who now do most of the food analysis.

Very exceptional pieces of work sometimes fall to the lot of the government chemists. An illustration is given by Bridges and Tiltman in their informing work, "Master Minds of Modern Science." At the record office, in Chancery lane, there is the most wonderful collection of ancient documents in existence, and not the least interesting is Shakespeare's marriage settlement. Not long ago the staff at the record office was shocked to discover a blot of ink on Shakespeare's signature. No one remembered having seen this before, and there was doubt as to whether it was an old blot or a new one. Off went the document to the laboratory, and almost at once came the answer that it was a new blot. A test of the ink proved it to be made from aniline dye, which, of course, did not exist in Shakespeare's time. The blot was removed and the document returned to the record office. Great Lake Navigation.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The federal government has expended nearly $150,000,000 in the improvement of navigation on the Great lakes, and probably no other state bordering on the lakes reaps larger reward from this work than does Ohio, because of her transcendent interest in coal and iron ore and the resultant iron and steel commerce and industry. And it is interesting to note that measures authorizing such expenditures have been passed in congress often in the face of opposition from men of wisdom and foresight in most other matters.

No one opposed more strenuously the project of the "Soo" canal than Henry Clay. It was in his latter days that the project was brought forward. Though always a leader in internal improvement enterprises, Mr. Clay threw himself against this as a plain piece of foolishness. The project of extending a considerable volume of water traffic into and upon Lake Superior, he likened to one to establish commercial traffic with the moon. Daniel Webster's earlier opposition to securing the Oregon country for attachment to the national domain was recalled. It was too remote in terms of travel and communication to make it practicable. Later from Mr. Clay's own state came another protest against spending federal money in navigation improvement in Lake Superior—Proctor Knott, whose ridicule of a harbor appropriation for Duluth, Minnesota, to which he referred as "The zenith city of the unsalted seas," still stands as one of the noted examples of wit on the floors of congress.

Because of the great benefit that this state, and to a lesser degree, all states, have enjoyed as a result of these enterprises it ought to be easy for us to realize that even the wisest of our public men may often be wrong in matters concerning which there is the widest room for difference of opinion. The saving of freight costs by reason of these navigation improvements in a single year exceeds all that the government has spent in them in all time.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Saturday, August 12.

The United States senate adopted a resolution to probe the election of Senator Isaac Stephenson, of Wisconsin, who spent something like $107,000 in his campaign.

Ray Hoffmire suffered a crushed left foot when it got caught in the elevator in the Huber block.

The matter of selecting the principals to serve in the various city school buildings for the coming years was turned over to the county commissioners owing to the fight on in the school board.

It was announced that the forty-second annual meeting of the Northwestern Ohio Medical association would be held in Marion September 13-14.

At the end of the sixteenth week of the Ohio State season McCall had a pitching average of .727; Seneff, .696, and Cooper, .636. All were members of the Marion team.

Marion was shut out, Grandle pitching superb ball, while Chillicothe scored eighteen runs off Goulait, Lewis and Bennet.

What Will Better Marion?

The following is the answer of one citizen to the question, "What Will Better Marion?"—the second in the questionnaire circulated by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer to get a comprehensive insight into the community feeling regarding our home city, in the hope of arriving at a remedy for handicaps, if any, from which Marion may suffer. From day to day, answers of various citizens to the same question will be given publicity on this page.

Things that will aid greatly in bettering Marion would be closer harmony among business and professional men and the general public of the city. Boost the town, don't knock. Boost each other, talk each other in the town, even if it hurts a little, keep the optimistic side shining before strangers, and they too will get the habit. Speak to each other when you meet and, above all, welcome strangers when they do decide to come to Marion to live. Don't wait a year to find them after they have been discouraged and are sore on the place, for it will be hard to reconcile them then. We don't need more shops at this time, develop the spirit of Marion in the ones we already have and all come out of the rut together. Why bring strangers here and spoil their clean minds by our distresses adding more fuel to the flame?

We frequently hear men grumble about their lot, and tell us about the other fellow who always gets the break. If he only had the opportunity or the money or the right kind of goods to sell, things would be different. It often happens, however, that the other fellow with no greater opportunities, with the same tools to work with, is able to accomplish results, and make a place for himself.

"Dear Old Lunnon."

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

London, Aug. 12—One is rarely able to escape the haughtiness that is distinctly London as a first impression. Yet in a few days it mellows—melts away like one of its waterlike fogs. Most Anglo-Saxons feel the tug of London no matter where they go. I think it is because of its pronounced pride.

No city in the world has rolled up such tradition. Every nook, every cranny, every mew is stuffed with some ancient memory that has played a part in history. In no other place has civilization, lumped such a queer massing of humanity. Like it or not it is a phenomenon one must admire.

Paris has a gloating purr and London a harsh jangle. In Paris one is attracted by the portentious triviality. In London only the sober and gigantic reality. To me it is a city where the sun, like the people seeking happiness, is always trying with futility to shine.

If one judged England by its countryside from a train window all looks well. The wheat, the barley and oats are in healthy luxuriance. Yellowhammers sing wildly on bordering hedge rows. Wild roses and bramble blossoms with touches of poppy scarlet bloom everywhere.

Yet upon thundering into Victoria station and entering the city there is a thought that Great Britain is world weary—a bit sick. It may have been imagination, but there was an impression of lassitude. I hurried to the cheerful artificial light of an hotel room.

A fugitive morning fog drifted low, stamping its eternal signet of the sea and making street and window illuminations pale yellow furry blobs. Pedestrians along paves seemed swimming figures snipped out of black paper. The buildings luminously gray in clear light were today vague smudges.

Despite these depressing surface misgivings there is a feeling of security about London. She appears a great ship plunging through the tempest with majestic indifference. And no matter the course, there is a conviction she is bound to reach port safely.

The gayest hour of London is the lunch time between 1 and 2. Everybody pours out of offices, shops and counting-rooms in a see-saw of exhuberance. Young men in trousers ruled like ledgers, stenographers arm in arm, young toffs in silk hats and gray derbies, Bill Sykeses Arriets and Alfs scurry to quick lunch bars and coffee stalls. Countless omnibusses sway with passengers. Groups collect on the curbs and bridge ends. The streets fill with criers of racing tip sheets. Faces so tense and questioning relax and London forgets its worries for an hour.

London does some of its naming tongue in cheek. I thought of this when I sought ministrations of the newest and grandest tonsorial parlor called "The Berkeley Shop." All over London are Berkeley hotels, Berkeley squares, Berkeley terraces and Berkeley manors. The original Berkeley is a shabby, down at heel village in Gloucestershire. One of the joke towns of variety halls.

The ex-service street musicians have grown into a vast army of pathetic troubadours. Often two and three to a block—some sightless, legless and otherwise maimed. Many shabby coat breasts are hung thickly with medals of valor. Their "Thank you" has the starchy inflection of the one-time aristocrat.

This jaunt has been productive of one contact I always desired, but somehow missed, in New York. It was introduction and pleasant evening with Harold MacGrath, the American novelist. He comes of the same literary era that produced Ade, Nicholson, Tarkington and McCutcheon, and is now putting the finishing touches on his thirty-ninth book, which with more than 1,500 short stories comprises a remarkable writing output. Our mutual love for dogs established an immediate and I hope lasting friendship. Who does not remember his "The Man on the Box," and "The Drums of Jeopardy?"

And that reminds me that perhaps all this "glooming" over London is because I had to leave my dog in France on account of the six-months quarantine rule on this side of the channel. He is billeted at a French chateaux with many wide acres for playground. He was too frantically excited over a squirrel on a limb—the first he had ever seen—to pay the slightest attention to our farewell pat. It is not likely he will miss us as we miss him.—Copyright, 1931, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Aug. 12—No statement is more true than that the United States senate, as a body, is slow to make changes, and that it clings to its traditions.

The sand-dusters, for example, exclusively in use in the olden days for the drying of freshly-written ink, still adorn each senator's desk. And though now each senator is supplied with an abundance of blotting paper, almost daily these sand-dusters are used after writing a check or signing a card of entrance to the gallery for some friend or constituent.

But it is perhaps in connection with women that the senate's love for the old order of things is more easily seen.

Granting privileges of the floor to women, not so long ago a practically unheard of thing, is still jealously guarded. A by-no-means aged attache of the senate is authority for the statement that until a few years ago the only woman he ever saw in the chamber was a witness in an impeachment trial.

When Lady Astor, of England, a duly-elected member of parliament—and members of foreign parliaments are permitted to the floor of the senate—visited the capitol about ten years ago, question arose as to whether she could come into the chamber. However, she was escorted in on the arm of Senator Swanson, of Virginia.

Even as late as last year there was some discussion as to whether women experts on silk and rayon from the tariff commission should be admitted when these schedules were under consideration in the tariff bill. They, too, were admitted.

Women clerks to several of the senate committees come in occasionally, but make it a practice not to stay long.

Miss Cora Rubin, clerk of the foreign relations committee, which is supposed to harbor many great state and international secrets, is one. Mrs. Martha Gold, clerk to the rules committee and aide to Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, is another.

Of course the gentlewomen of the house are accorded privileges to the floor and many are seen there frequently. Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen and Mrs. Mary Norton perhaps visit the most.

Only one woman has ever sat as a member of the senate—she was Mrs. Rebecca Felton, of Georgia, appointed by Governor Hardwick to succeed temporarily to the place left vacant by the death of Senator Tom Watson. Senator George, of Georgia, stepped aside that this distinction might be given to the first woman ever to sit in the senate.

Incidentally, the only decoration which has ever been permitted in the senate chamber as a permanent fixture is the handiwork of a woman.

It is a silk American flag, presented by Mrs. J. M. Terelle, of Savannah, Georgia, in Vice President Marshall's time. Since its presentation it has hung continuously behind the president's dais.

Babies Aided by Club Milk Fund

TWENTY-TWO of Marion's undernourished babies were taken care of in July by the milk fund established by the Marion County Federation of Women's club, a monthly report issued today discloses.

Mrs Frank M. Knapp, welfare chairman in charge of the milk fund, made her report today before leaving on a vacation to Canada. The fund was established July 11 with an old-fashioned ice cream social given by the federation under the direction of the welfare department.

The federation came to the front when it was learned that nearly 50 babies in Marion were facing starvation because the families did not have the money to buy milk.

CHAPTER 25

Moon of Delight

S place was on the road New Orleans, at the end of r. The supper which was en on the veranda was one great room because atening clouds. It was many windows and deep w seats.

filling one end was the place where tonight a log , lighting the room even the lanterns that swung beams.

table was ranged with crackers and condiments. simmered in the tripod on and Steve in the corner ing up a salad of cab- red peppers. Outside the ed and dashed salt spray the windows. Inside it was warm, and filled with the smell of the gumbo and the pep- pers, and a surreptitious steamy smell of oysters and hot bread.

Most of the crowd were there when Adrian and his group arrived —Bettina Byrnes and Rod Stevens, a pale girl in gold hoop earrings and chamois jumper—Emmy Jean they called her. Bobby Cranshaw and Doreen Larkin, a tall athletic girl in a blue sweater. Emmy Jean had come with a boy named Berry whom Juanita remembered from the Comus ball. Berry had been a goblin that night, and for Juanita, a goblin he would always be.

Phyllis Carver, a vivid blonde, stood near the fire in a green rid- ing suit, beside her a man with dark unhappy eyes, while on a window seat alone Juanita saw the girl she had seen twice before - once beside Eric Ledbetter at Di- vitt's, and again at the Comus ball. All in black tonight, Juanita knew that beneath her tight little cloche was a red, wind-blown bob. She sat smoking, sleepy-eyed, looking out on the gray sea.

"Naida, you know Juanita." Bet- tina Byrnes took it for granted they had met. Naida's smile was sweet and sleepy.

"I do now," she said, giving Ju- anita her little hand which crumpled up afterward like a fern, and she went on gazing at the sea wrapped in the midst of her own smoke. A lean chap with glasses whom every one called Trigger, drifted over to Naida, being presented to Juanita on the way.

Laurie Byrnes, twin to Bettina, came later, a rakish lad in tow. Fitzgerald his name was. Every- body received him with joy. He had been a sultan that night at Comus, and Juanita had danced with him. Fitz for Juanita was a sultan still. Rod Stevens was a pirate. And Bobby Cranshaw was a tom-cat with a bell. It was too bad. But this was the masquerade, not Comus.

Fitz turned on the radio eliciting thereby such static that a flock of banshees might have been passing over the house. "Radio's no good tonight," said Steve. "It's goin' to rain."

Steve, fat and round, waited on his guests himself, assisted by a black boy in a white coat, who stopped now and then to look after the pot of drip coffee on the coals, and who brought them river shrimp, and crab gumbo from the tripod, while Steve took from the great bricked-in ovens at the chimney sides long pans of pompano and oysters baked in the shells.

Fitz had left the radio on, static being, he said, so much more spon- taneous than ordinary programs. The guests were whooping them- selves to be heard above it.

"Turn it off," said the girl with the sleepy eyes to Steve, watching as he obeyed. She smoked nervous- ly, jabbing out one cigaret to light another. Wines had appeared from somewhere and she began to drink, manifesting a gradual feverish sparkle.

"Who is she?" Juanita asked Kirk, who sat on her right.

"Naida Preston," he answered. "That's her husband, next to the marquesa."

Next to the marquesa sat the dark man with the unhappy eyes. He lifted his glass as Juanita looked, and the marquesa lifted hers. Juanita had never seen the marquesa drink before.

Fitz had started the phonograph, since he couldn't have the radio.

"How's Eric?" somebody asked him as he took his seat.

Fitz didn't know. Eric was to have been home by the tenth, but the tenth had come and gone.

"Must find the Moon of Delight rather fascinating," remarked Phyllis Carver, the blonde girl in the green riding suit. She sat at the table's end opposite Adrian.

"Who says he's gone with the Moon?" asked Fitz.

"Who says he's not?" demanded Phyllis. "Didn't I lose ten dollars on her?"

"Still howling about your ten," Fitz remarked. "That don't prove he's with her now."

"Nothing proves anything Fitz darling," the lady agreed amiably. "But given Eric and a wild woman whom he's undoubtedly dippy over; given Eric gone and the wild wo- man gone—"

"Who's Moon of Delight?" Jua- nita asked.

The question was low, but it came in a pause of the talk while Fitz was changing a record. Naida Preston heard it and answered, lighting a cigaret:

"Moon of Delight is a horse. Just won the handicap."

Everybody laughed. "Naida's game all right," Adrian said to Bet- tina Byrnes on his left. To Juanita he replied, "Moon of Delight is the name Eric Ledbetter gave to the girl—"

Kirk spoke up. "Juanita has never been to Divitt's," he said.

"That so?" from Adrian. "There's a Turkish girl there who has never told her name. So Eric christened her Moon of Delight. Suits her, too. Wouldn't you say so, Rod?"

"How do I know?" said Rod.

"Turkish nothing," said Bettina on Rod's right. "I'll bet she grew up right there in French Town. Eric told me she spoke to him in a mixture of Spanish and English."

"That was the night I lost my ten," said Phyllis, who was drink- ing with Dick Preston now. "Eric went out after her one night at Divitt's, bet us he wouldn't come back—and he didn't."

"Ask Adrian what the Moon speaks," cried Emmy Jean. "Does she make love in English, Adrian?"

"Ask any of the men," said Do- reen Larkin. "Ask Kirk."

"She never looked at me," said Kirk. "And never spoke to me. All I ever got was a flower she gave Nelly."

"You would say that," groaned Phyllis.

Fitz came back from the phono- graph, pulling Laurie out of her chair. They began to dance, dart- ing about, mad as moths.

"Shall we dance?" Adrian asked Juanita. She shook her head. Kirk laid his hand over hers in the shadow of the table.

"Feel all right?" he asked.

"You aren't drinking your wine," Adrian remarked, and poured it into her coffee.

"Now look at the mess you've made," said Doreen Larkin on Kirk's other side. "Come on. Dance." And she caught Kirk's hand. His other hand gave Jua- nita's fingers a quick pressure. She watched him through the haze of cigaret smoke, dancing with Do- reen . . . .

"Sure you won't dance?" Adrian's voice again.

Again she shook her head. Adrian went off with Bettina. Emmy Jean came from the other side of the table and took Adrian's vacant chair. Phyllis called from the table's foot.

"You the host now, Emmy Jean? Order some more wine."

The wine appeared. Scarcely aware of what she saw, Juanita watched the marquesa raise her glass. The marquesa was laughing incessantly. Everyone of the men had brought her a cigar. They lay in a pile before her. The marquesa was playing with them, drinking, laughing.

Moon of Delight. . . . Divitt's. And only yesterday Divitt's had been like a dream to Juanita. Only this morning she had suddenly thought, "I had almost forgotten there was such a place."

But now it all came back to her. Eric Ledbetter...his bet with Phyllis that he would see the Moon —as they called her—and wouldn't come back. So that was what they thought about her when he didn't. Perhaps Kirk thought so too.

To Be Continued.

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

IT wasn't raining when I woke up this morning, and when I had laid quite a while wondering what a barbecu was like I pushed Jubi- lee out of bed and got out and let him down and put on my short britches and went downstairs and got the pail and went out to milk the cows, and while I was milk- ing the bunch came and they all went out and looked at the barbecu thing, and it is built up quite a ways something like a stove, with the front end open, and then before he built it any more French's father laid a wire screen acrosst and then he put mortar on the edges of that and built it up again with some more bricks till the top edges were about a foot above the wire. Frenchy says his father will build a hickory fire in the bottom of it and keep it going almost all day so that when he gets ready to barbecu the chickens there won't be anything but red coals, and then he will put the chickens on the wire screen and after a while they will be mighty good to eat. Frenchy's father can cook so good he don't need a wife, so maybe he is just being polite to my aunt to make her feel good.

On the way to the pasture we called for Ebbie the new kid, be- cause he hadn't come to the barn, and when he came out to go with us he asted his mother if he might take off his shoes, and she said certainly not. So he didn't go in swimming with us. I told him he didn't ast her if he could go in swimming and to come on in and leave his shoes on, but he is afraid of his mother. I asted him why, and he said that his mother makes him do things because they are good for him and she loves him. I thought that that was so when you came to think about it, because mothers wouldent get any fun out of making kids not do things just to be mean. He was standing with us by the side of the mud flats where the creek in the pasture had went down after, and the Lost Bag of Tripe asted him how old he was and when he said he was nine the Lost Bag of Tripe said, "Aw, you're spoofing!" and gave him a push that made him back up two or three steps and set down in the gooey, and the Lost Bag of Tripe had just opened his mouth to give a warhoot when Feeble plastered it full with a handful of mud she had grabbed up when he pushed Ebbie, and he skun out spitting mud in every direction with Eb- bie after him. For Ebbie isn't afraid to fight.

We went home with him aand told his mother he got pushed, and she told him that the first time he caught the boy that pushed him she expected him to make him sorry he done it, and Ebbie said he would. I bet he will too. But she is a funny kind of a mother to want her little boy to fight. Eb- bies says she says that anyone that don't fight won't get very far. But the Lost Bag of Tripe don't fight and he gets far, and fast, whenever anyone goes to fight him.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Veritzen Disapproves of the Char- acter, Vickers.

TO my intense annoyance, I found my hands shaking as I turned the manuscript pages of my third act back to the place Philip Verit- zen had indicated, the entrance of the character, Vickers.

I could not tell from Mr. Verit- zen's manner whether my delinea- tion of the character had pleased or displeased him, but I was fa- miliar enough with his methods to know that he had singled this char- acter out for special attention, with its corollary, a special verdict of ap- proval or disapproval.

Had Dicky been right in his pre- diction? When we both had real- ized that the character of Vickers was a caricature of Dicky's un- pleasant qualities which I had sub- consciously drawn, he had said to me that Philip Veritzen "would probably toss Vickers into the in- cinerator."

"What's the Matter?"

I had been furious at myself, be- cause mingled with relief at this prospect of getting rid of the char- acter without having to make an issue of it, I found that I cherished a bit of wounded "temperamental author" vanity at the idea of Philip Veritzen being so displeased with the character I had drawn that he would delete it from the act.

There was distinct curiosity min- gled with my other emotions. Did Philip Veritzen recognize, with Dicky, the fact that I had uncon- sciously based the unpleasant char- acter of Vickers upon some of Dicky's foibles? I knew that if he had noticed the similarity it would make no difference in his appraisal of the character's value to the play. If he ordered the elision of Vickers from the play it would be because he considered him badly drawn, or that his conception was out of keeping with the other characters.

There would be no personal note in his decision. He was noted for that, this greatest dramatic pro- ducer of his time. I had heard it said of him that "he would not yield an iota of his critical opinion concerning a production if the wealth of the world or the love of some woman he idealized were at stake."

Philip Veritzen's voice brought me back with a jerk from specula- tion to reality.

A Re Reading

"What's the matter?" he asked sharply, "did the reading exhaust you?"

I remembered something else I had heard of him. An exasperated actress had once said that "not be- ing flesh and blood himself, he did not expect anybody else to be made of those elements," and I knew that nothing annoyed him so much as an exhibition of physical weakness upon the part of any one of his subordinates.

"No, indeed," I protested warmly. "I am perfectly all right. It's the entrance of Vickers you wish, isn't it?"

"Yes."

The monosyllable was curt and warned me not to delay longer in the reading. But I had hard work to keep my voice steady as I read over again the speeches of Vickers and the responses of the other char- acters, while Philip Veritzen with his head propped upon his right- hand in a characteristic listening attitude scarcely moved an eyelash until I came to the line upon which Vickers made his exit.

A "Black Spot"

"Stop right there," he command- ed, and I obeyed him, but kept my eyes fixed on the manuscript. I felt a little as if I were a prisoner at the bar waiting to hear a verdict.

"I never knew it to fail," the great man began slowly and judi- ciously, "that the first play, no mat- ter how brilliant or well-written, always contains what I call a 'black spot.' It may be a single speech, it may be the drawing of a character, it may be the action of one of the scenes, but somewhere, in every play, you will find it, or such has been my invariable experience."

He stopped, and I felt as if my breath were suspended also as I waited to hear the illustration of his remarks which I felt sure was coming.

"Now, take this play. I had my doubts about that character, Vick- ers, when you first brought him in- to the second act, but he had so little to do that I reserved judg- ment. He's your 'black spot,' how- ever. Can't you see yourself that he is a perfectly impossible buf- foon?"

There was such utter contempt in his voice, or so I imagined, that I had hard work to keep back a hopeless little gasp of disappoint- ment. I remembered that he had praised the first two acts of my play highly, but he had said no word of commendation of this third act. I wondered if he disapproved of it as a whole or if his evident dislike of the character Vickers had tinged his estimate of the whole act.

Were They Both Wrong?

This, then was the result of the nerve racking night I had put in upon the third act, with Lillian and Katherine, in Lillian's own whimsi- cal phraseology "going Aaron and the other fellow one better in the stunt of holding up the hands of Moses." I had been right instead of Lillian when I had insisted that no work done at such speed could be good. Yet I hugged the assur- ance to my heart desperately. Lil- lian whose critical faculty I valued, had said that my third act was the best she had seen in many a day, and Dicky whose opinion I prized even more, also had approved it, except for the characters of Vick- ers. Were they both entirely wrong? Would Philip Veritzen have no word of commendation whatever for the piece of work over which I had toiled so hard?

ARREST SUSPECTS IN AUTO PYRE MURDERS

Killing of Two Ohio Girls and Escorts Bring Widespread Manhunt.

slain several miles from the scene where the burned automobile was found.

E. L. Squires, Washtenaw county deputy sheriff, revealed the police theory of the slayings today.

"The assassins killed Lore and at least overpowered young Wheatley at the spot where the purse was found, in my opinion," he said. "Then they drove with Wheatley and Lore and the girls to the county line road where the car was found and attacked the girls there."

Lore and Miss Gold were cousins, and the two girls had been visiting in the Lore home. The couples were last seen alive about 8 p. m. Monday in Ypsilanti.

The finding of the purse, officials said, was the first definite indication that the slayer or slayers of the four persons fled in an automobile in a northern direction toward this city.

The officials said they believed the purse, which was found by Kyle Ordway of Ypsilanti, two and one-half miles southeast of here, had been thrown from the slayers' car after they had left the scene of the murder.

Sheriff Jacob B. Andres of Ypsilanti, said the finding of the purse altered considerably the status of the case in relation to Paul and Lawrence Keene, brothers arrested as suspects Tuesday evening. The Keenes have no car, Sheriff Andres said, and it would have been impossible for them to have traveled such a distance in the time allowed.

Placed Under Suspicion

Paul, 49, and Lawrence, 38, live in a shack on wheels. They were arrested when officers saw them washing clothing and scraping hickory clubs. Stains on the clubs and on garments found in the shack were ordered examined. A preliminary report said that there was blood on one of the clubs, but it was not determined whether it was human blood. Both brothers denied connection with the crime.

While Prosecutor Albert J. Rapp of Washtenaw county and Assistant Prosecutor Miles N. Culehan of Detroit, were questioning the brothers last night, sheriff's officers visited dance halls and resorts in an effort to trace the couple's movements.

Indications were found by officers that another automobile followed Lore's machine, cut in front and forced it to stop with its front wheels near the ditch.

Officers reasoned that the attack might have been made by occupants of the other car. From whatever source or motive the attack came, they believed Lore, a husky youth, gave the first resistance and was shot down. The autopsy showed Wheatley's skull was fractured. The condition of the girls' blood showed they had been beaten.

Until recent weeks there had been numerous reports of "petting party bandits" committing petty robberies among couples parked on roads in the Detroit area, but no instances of violence.

A reward of $1,000 for information leading to the apprehension and conviction of the slayers has been offered by the Detroit News.

BURNED CAR PYRE OF 4 PERSONS

JUVENILE GRANGE PLANS FAIR WORK

Plans for an exhibit at the Ohio state junior fair at Columbus were completed at the meeting last night of the Grand Prairie juvenile grange at the Grand Prairie school. Donald Roof, the grange's fresh air ward from Cincinnati, who was adopted for the summer by the grange, was enrolled in the grange.

Last year the grange scored 100 per cent at the fair and was one of five juvenile granges in the state to receive honor pennants. An honor certificate was also received recently from the national grange in recognition of the work done in the last year. There were 85 such certificates awarded in the United States. An additional enterprise of the group at the fair will be the portrayal of their achievements and the method used in winning honors at the fair last year. This will be given in addition to the regular exhibit.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Stowe and the mothers of members of the grange were guests at the meeting last night.

AUDITOR TALKS AT ROTARY MEETING

County Auditor E. E. Thomas who spoke to members of the Rotary club on the new tax law at the luncheon meeting at Hotel Harding yesterday, said plans were now under way by the state tax commission to establish schools of instructions for county auditors on the various phases of the new law.

The talk given by Auditor Thomas was similar to that given to members of the Kiwanis club and at the recent tax meeting held at Garfield park. The various angles of the law were outlined and some of its ramifications explained in the talk.

No candidate was named on the Democratic ticket for city solicitor. Carter Patton, Republican, will be unopposed in November. Although a few Democrats wrote in the names of three attorneys, none of them received the required number of votes to be certified to the state board of elections.

the air, followed him and was the first to reach his landing place.

Over the telephone to Nome, Lindbergh talked to newspapermen who called for him.

Have Plenty of Fuel

"We are feeling fine," he said, "and wish you Nome folks all the regards in the world."

Col. Lindbergh explained before leaving Aklavik, they knew the cutter Northland had failed to arrive with their special gas supplies but said they put more than 200 gallons of gas aboard, and had plenty of fuel to carry them all the way to Nome.

On leaving Safety bay a full load of 400 gallons of gas will be taken aboard the plane.

In crossing the Bering sea the Lindberghs will back track a part of the route followed by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty on their record-breaking world flight.

The Lindberghs, however, will make their hop only about half as long as that of Post and Gatty who flew 2,100 miles from Kharbarovsk, Siberia, to Solomon, near Nome.

Diligent Hunt Is Rewarded by Finding of Gold

By United Press.

AMERICAN FORK, Utah, Aug. 12—A strang "feud" of half a century between a rugged canyon and several generations of a family of gold seeks, has ended. The gold-seekers finally have won.

Fifty-five years ago, Rawsell Gardner, who had a saw mill in Tank cayon, picked up a specimen of queer looking rock, which he took to town during the winter and found assayed as high as $100,000 a ton in bright, yellow gold.

When spring thrawed the snows and opened Tank canyon to travel Gardner went back to find his "mine" and dug a fortune.

But nature had played a trick on Rawsell Gardner. Landslides and floods had changed the canyon's contour, and the saw mill operator was unable to find the spot where he had picked up the gold.

With his brothers, Joseph, Heber and Robert, he searched, stolidly at first, then frantically for the vein of gold.

The search became a tradition with the Gardner family. Sons of the brothers were educated as mining engineers. Son's of those sons followed in the profession, always the hunt went on for the "lost mine."

Now after all these years Royal Gardner, and his son Kenneth, both mining engineers, have brough rock from Tank canyon assaying up to $1,700 a ton in gold.

It did not compare to the find made by Rawsel Gardner, back in 1880 but it did mark the rediscovery of gold by the Gardner family in Tank canyon and so gave them victory at last over the country which had held its secret from them for so long.

Chicagoan Lands in Jail As "Invention" Fails To Work

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 12—Being out of work, Charles Fresnel, a young inventor, decided that he might just as well improve his time with an invention that would annoy the girl he lost a couple of years ago.

His plan was to have Miss Ina Underwood arrested as a gang "queen" to see what would happen. So he wrote an unsigned letter to the police which said:

"If you want to prevent a murder, act quick. I need the help of your department. The victim is to be taken for a ride under the influence of Ina Underwood. Strike that house and it will stop one crime and solve some others. Ask about the killings around Superior, Wis."

The police struck. Big automobiles, loaded with detectives, were driven to the address specified, and the house was surrounded. Inside they found Ina. She was taken to the detective bureau and questioned all night, but her ignorance of murders or any other kind of crime, was convincing. Finally Detective Chief John Norton read the letter, and she laughed.

"Go to Winnetka (a Chicago suburb) and get Charles Fresnel," she said. "He's been worrying me for a long time to marry him."

Charles was arrested. His version was that he had given Ina a watch to prove he loved her, but hadn't seen her for some time and wanted to "get even."

They put Charles in a cell, as they did so Ina turned to go, but Chief Norton stopped her.

"You are going to stay anothe night," he said, "not because you have done anything but because I want you to be real mad tomorrow when you testify about this inventor in court."

It was so done.

MUCH EXPENSE ABOUT NOTHING

By International News Service

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 12—Cincinnati taxpayers had to pay $20,418 to find out what everybody knew was going to happen at yesterday's primary election of congressional candidates to succeed the late Speaker Nicholas Longworth.

Neither David Lorbach, Democrat, nor John B. Hollister, Republican, was opposed for the respective party nominations, but the law says there must be a primary, even if it does seem to be a waste of the public funds. And so a primary there was.

Members of the board of elections spent most of the day, figuring that the "election" cost $20,418.

ZO-RO-LO
TRADE MARK
That Famous Red Medicine

ARE YOU A DRUG ADDICT?

You know you can be addicted to other drugs than narcotics, although we usually think of narcotics when we say drug addict. There are thousands of people today who never have an evacuation of the bowels without the use of drugs. Laxatives, you say. Or cathartics. Yes, but most of these are made of some drug, and you get the habit of taking them until you can not eliminate without them. You find you need larger and larger doses and finally the effect may wear out entirely and you try some other kind of drug.

This habit is not only dangerous to health but is so unnecessary.

The average laxative simply excites the nerves of the lower bowel so that peristaltic (snakelike) action begins and evacuation of this lower bowel only is started. That is not enough help for Nature, if she is to keep your body in normal health. She must be assisted by some agent which will stimulate the action of the liver, pancreas, gall bladder, stomach, small intestines and all organs of digestion and elimination, in order to establish that all-important process of normal METABOLISM.

ZO-RO-LO is the IDEAL agent for this purpose. It is composed of Nature's own finest ingredients in just the right proportions to give the right help. It contains no habit-forming drugs, no narcotics and no alcohol. IT IS DIFFERENT FROM EVERY OTHER MEDICINE IN THE WORLD, and is producing almost incredible results, in thousands of homes in this vicinity. If you would be free from dangerous cathartics, buy a bottle of ZO-RO-LO today, and correct your constipation permanently.

Centennial Services Open at Caledonia Memorial Church

Former Mayor Will Give Welcome Address

Pageant To Tell Story of Progress; Village Sees Founding of Methodism in County; Many Pastors Serve Charge in History of Century.

Special to The Star

CALEDONIA, Aug. 12—Former Mayor [illegible] Bell will represent [illegible] in extending a greeting [illegible] and former residents [illegible] at the opening service [illegible] four-day centennial [illegible] Memorial M. E.

REV. W. P. MICHEL
Pastor Memorial M. E. church at Caledonia.

[illegible] tonight. Rev. W. P. Michel is pastor of the church.

Music, talks and refreshments will make up the program and social features of the initial gathering.

100 in Pageant

More than 100 characters will depict the pageant which will tell of the program of the church when the second night's program is presented Thursday. Friday night has been designated as Caledonia Larger Parish night and Sunday will feature a rally of all departments of the Sunday school.

Special music will be furnished by the churches of the Caledonia larger parish Friday night and Rev. W. B. Robinson of New London will give an address on "The Rural and Village Church in the Life of the Community."

First Church

The centennial sermon will be delivered by Rev. C. P. Barnes of Ashtabula at the rally day services Sunday morning. The league service Sunday night will be followed by the closing service and sermon by Rev. John D. Green, pastor of the First M. E. church of Bucyrus.

The first church was built before the village was laid out and Indians still roamed this part of the country. About 70 ministers served the charge which extended over a wide territory. For many years two ministers were appointed to this eight-point circuit.

The earliest record of religious services conducted regularly in the vicinity of Caledonia were held by James Gilruth, a Methodist preacher in about the year 1826. No organization was perfected until the year 1830 when some 25 men and women gathered at the home of William Garberson, a farmer, living on what is now the Harding highway, west of here. A Methodist Episcopal church was organized. Caledonia at this time was a point on the Marion circuit.

First Building

The first building was erected in 1833 on the lot where the town hall now stands. The building was used until 1861 when it was sold and a new church built on the present church site.

In 1908 and 1909 the present church was erected through the generosity of Mrs. Stephen V. Harkness of New York as a memorial to Mrs. A. Maria Underwood her mother. Mrs. Harkness also provided the funds for the erection of the church parsonage and endowed the property. Through a generous gift from Edward S. Harkness the building was redecorated and repaired this summer.

The first religious society in Marion county was formed in the home of Jacob Idleman in April, 1825, and was of the Methodist Episcopal denomination. The second society formed was of the same denomination and was organized in the log cabin of Jacob Aye in the fall of the same year. In 1824 a round log church was built on Drew's cemetery just south of Caledonia. The first class was formed in Marion in 1825.

Rev. James Gilruth was the pastor of a large territory known as the Delaware circuit. At the session of the Ohio conference in 1827 the Marion circuit was formed with Rev. Gilruth as the first pastor. The following points were on the circuit: Marion, Caledonia, [illegible] Little Sandusky, Wyandot's Corners and Judge Idleman's.

Pastors Names

Pastors of the Marion circuit of which Caledonia was a part were as follows:

1826-27, James Gilruth; 1827-28, James Gilruth and Cyrus Carpenter; 1828-29, James Gilruth and W. [illegible]; 1829-30, David Lewis and [illegible] P. Shaw; 1830-31, Samuel Shaw and Alfred Loraine; 1831-32, Alfred M. Loraine and David Chamberlader; 1832-33, J. C. Havens and E. Fellon; 1833-34, E. Fellon and Zephaniah Bell; 1834-35, H. liams; 1841-42, Peter Sharp and William C. Pierce; 1842-43, Henry E. Pilcher and William C. Pierce. At this time Marion became a station and for the next two years pastors were assigned to Caledonia as follows: 1843-44, L. Hill and S. D. Seymour; 1844-45, J. J. McNabb.

At the close of 1845 Caledonia became a part of the Waldo circuit with the following ministers: 1845-46, C. J. Orr; 1846-47, W. M. Spafford; 1847-48, C. Thomas, 1848-49, W. H. Nickerson; 1849-50, W. Beggs, 1850-51-52, Philip Plummer; 1852-53, W. S. Paul; 1853-55-56, R. Herbert.

Pastor's Budget

From 1856 the church was listed as the Caledonia circuit and Benjamin Herbert and Richard Lawrence served as pastors. The circuit was composed of Caledonia, North Canaan, Claridon, Denmark, Aye's, Zuck's Monnett, Latimberville, Winchester and Iberia. The total number of members was 222 of which 43 were members of the Caledonia church. The financial budget for the year allowed the pastor table expenses amounting to $180, fuel $30, traveling expenses $20, salary $304. Richard Lawrence, assistant pastor, was allowed a salary claim of $116, board for self, $56, traveling expenses, $20, board for child, $50.

GROVE HANGS UP HIS 23D VICTORY AS A'S WALLOP DETROIT 8-1

Marberry Stops White Sox and Washington Wins, 3-0; Rain Stops Tribe.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Ever so often during the fanning bees this season, the word has gone out that Connie Mack is about ready to break up his current baseball machine and start building a new team.

He did it once, and those who believe the present Philadelphia team is nearing the end of the championship road are willing to believe Mack will repeat that experiment.

But the Athletics lineup for the past three weeks indicates Mack will not have such a long hard pull in rebuilding his team if he does decide to make important changes before next year. For about three weeks the A's have been theoretically crippled. Joe Boley and Jimmy Dukes have been out of action most of the time and a third infield regular, Max Bishop, has missed a good many games. Added to that, Mule Haas was hurt, putting a serious kink in the outfield.

Subs Work Well

In that three weeks, however, the Athletics have won 15 games and lost seven, proving that Mack has some substitutes who can go along winning games in the accepted Athletic manner. Dib Williams and Erec McNair have served well in the infield and Jimmy Foxx has been able to move over to third when it was required while Roger Cramer is showing up well in the outfield.

The trio of "substitutes" behind Lefty Grove yesterday produced an 8 to 1 victory over the Detroit Tigers in the first game of the new western tour. McNair started the deciding rally in the second inning with a home run.

Marberry Stops Sox

Fred "Firpo" Marberry, second ranking pitcher of the American league, kept Washington in its customary place behind the Athletics by shutting out the Chicago White Sox, 3-0. Marberry allowed only three singles while Red Faber started his own defeat in the fourth inning with a wild throw that let the first Senator run score.

Danny MacFayden of the Boston Red Sox come out ahead in yesterday's other major league game, getting a 4 to 3 decision over the St. Louis Browns. The Sox gained a three-run lead in the first inning by bunching hits after Levey's error had filled the bases. They won out in the eighth on Tom Oliver's single after the Browns had tied the score in the seventh.

New York and Cleveland in the American league and all three games on the National league schedule were rained out.

DESPITE the fact that he has competed in only about half of the games played by his team this season, Kenneth Gallant, third baseman of the First Presbyterians, has cinched nothing worse than a tie for home run honors for the season in the No. 2 Sunday school circuit. Gallant has banged three homers, the same number as has Roy Converse of Forest Lawn Converse's team has completed its season while the Presbyterians have one more game to play.

The fact that the two leaders in home run hitting in the No. 2 church circuit have banged out only three homers apiece might well bring up the question: Where are the sluggers of 1930 who clouted in the vicinity of 10 home runs for the season. Perhaps no one is so much interested in where the 1930 leaders are, as to what has caused the sudden drop in four ply clouts this season.

Your guess is as good as mine as to the reason. There isn't any way by which the cause can be accurately determined but off-hand it looks looks there are two factors having more to do with it than anything else. One is improved pitching in the league. The other is the use of gloves by outfielders.

There is little doubt that the pitching has been better this year than last. Home runs are not clouted with ease off the offerings of hurlers like Kellogg, Lindsey, Zuspan, Schwaderer and several others perhaps equally as good.

The use of gloves has also undoubtedly contributed to the slowing down of the home run pace. Many a hit that last year would have slipped from a fielder's grasp to go for a homer has been nailed down tight for an out this season. A fact, incidentally that has made games more interesting to watch. Ruthian-like drives are all well and good and produce big scores but brilliant running catches on the part of outfielders seem to get the bigger hand from Marion gallleries. Now that I've given my reasons for the drouth of homers you can name yours. They may both be wrong—but what a chance for an argument.

BRING on the fireworks! Open up a keg of nails and let's celebrate! After many long and arduous campaigns, during which they have always finished within one or two places of the top, the St. Mary Irish have battered their way through the No. 1 Sunday school circuit to a league championship. It took 14 weeks of long hard work for the wearers of the green to turn the trick but they finally accomplished their aim, beating the Epworth Seniors yesterday in a torrid battle that ended 3-2.

The Irish earned that championship. The Seniors saw to that. Ordinarily one wouldn't expect a seventh place team playing with eight men to give the title aspirants a particularly stiff fight but the Seniors had no idea of presenting the crown to the green shirts without making them work the limit.

A Real Duel

Bryant Corwin and Gene Gunder staged a first class hurler's duel. Both granted seven hits. However Gunder scattered the Seniors' hits slightly more effectively and as a result won the game. The Irish nicked Corwin for three of their seven safeties in the fifth frame and scored two of their three runs in the same stanza. Both pitchers were touched for one extra base hit, Hogan getting a double for the Irish and Corwin driving out a two bagger for the losers.

The Epworth No. 1 team saw a perfectly good seven game winning streak snapped yesterday when a fellow Methodist team, the Bishops, slapped out a 5-3 victory over the Clark proteges. The Bishops nicked Bob Gamble for seven hits while Eddie Mautz gave the losers one less than this total.

Mautz Started It

The Bishops jumped into the lead in the first frame when with two men out, Roush cracked out a double and Mautz followed with a ringing three-bagger. Marion Hinklin doubled in the third with two mates aboard to give the No. 1 team a 2-1 lead but it didn't last long as the Bishops promptly tied it up in the first of the fourth.

Eddie Mautz, Bishop hurler, took it upon himself to do something about getting some scores in the fourth frame when he took a liking to one of Gamble's high balls and drove it over Virden's head in center field for a homer. Two men were on the bases at the time. That ended the game for the No. 1 outfit. An outfield error for the Bishops gave the Clark nine another run in the last of the seventh but they never threatened very seriously after Mautz rode the homer out of the lot in the fourth.

Trinity Wins Shutout

Trinity Baptist hoisted itself back into the first division by hammering the slants of Kochensperger, Lutheran hurler for 12 safeties and seven runs to win 7-0. The Baptist victory kept the Lutherans firmly imbedded in last place, where only a victory tonight can keep them from being shunted back into the No. 2 league next season.

Starling Somerlot and Bob Merchant corralled the major share of the glories in this game. Somerlot, occupying the mound, gave the Lutherans only one hit, a single by Schwambly, and Merchant, first sacker, clouted two homers to aid his team.

One Big Inning

Calvary Evangelical completed its season yesterday by handing the Lee Street Presbyterians a 4-1 hurler, didn't get warmed up to his task until the second inning but unforaunately it was then too late. Calvary nicked the Lee Street pitcher for four hits and three runs in the opening frame and could get one more the rest of the game. Three walks and a single by Fox brought in the only Calvary score after the first inning. Lee Street put together a single by Barr and a triple by Braham in the fourt to count their only score. Lee street ouhit the winners six to five but couldn't bunch their blows effectively.

THREE U. S. PLAYERS REMAIN IN TOURNEY

By The Associated Press

MONTREAL, Aug. 12 — The United States' contingent was down to three today as sixteen survivors in the Canadian amateur golf championship moved into the second round of match play.

Arthur (Ducky) Yates of Rochester, N. Y., William A. Ryan of Detroit and his son, Francis W. Ryan, successfully negotiated the first round but the Boston "siege gun," Jesse Guilford, J. Van Northwick of Wheaton, Ill., and Jack McCarthy of Boston, all were eliminated.

Guilford's drubbing at the hands of young Carroll Stuart of Montreal, 12 to 11, was the outstanding upset of the first round. Van Northwick bowed to R. Morrison of Vancouver, in a close fight, 2 and 1, and McCarthy went down before Fred Hoblitzel, Toronto veteran, 6 and 5.

Yates defeated J. W. Yulle of Montreal without trouble, 11 and 10; W. A. Ryan defeated Frank Corrigan of Ottawa, 4 and 3, while his son, Francis, medalist of the tournament a year ago, eliminated Carson Mac Williams, of Vancouver, 7 and 6.

HEIMACH CAPTURES STARTING JOB

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Whether the Brooklyn Robins win the pennant or not this season, Freddie Heimach, veteran southpaw, has won out in one of his ambitions.

He has become a starting pitcher for the club. Decision of "Uncle" Wilbert Robinson to use the former Yankee hurler regularly in a starting role, came after Heimach recently pitched the club to a 2-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

His next time out was in the same series with the Pirates, and in this game Heimach was defeated by the same score. However, no starting pitcher these days is discredited when he holds the opposition to three runs.

A part of Heimachs enthusiasm over his new status is brought about by the fact that the club has promised him a bonus if he has a winning season. After his two games with the Pirates, Heimach's record stood as three games won and a like number lost.

Uncle Robbie is enthusiastic over the form Heimach has shown recently.

He has as good a fast ball as Jim Elliott, southpaw who has developed into a star with the Phillies, according to Uncle Robbie.

Freddie is one of the best hitting pitchers in the majors, and while with the hard-hitting Yankees a couple of season ago was used in pinch-hitting roles.

Freddie Heimach, veteran southpaw, finally has won a regular's job on the firing line of the Brooklyn Robins. Recent fine work against Pittsburgh got him promoted from a role as a relief pitcher.

SCHAAF PRESTIGE ON UPGRADE BY K O WIN

Boston Puncher Wallops Snyder Hard; Fight Stopped in Fifth Round.

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Aug. 12—Ernie Schaaf, a slow thinker but a very fast puncher, has boosted his pugilistic prestige another notch by winning a technical knockout over Angus Snyder of Dodge City, Kan., in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round joust.

The towering slugger, who, after years of campaigning crashed into the circle of top notchers, only a few months ago when he learned that his long right arm carried the sleep that means victory, plied into Snyder with the gong to deposit some very discouraging shots.

Schaaf played for Snyder's midriff during most of the first round and then in the second, when Snyder closed in and held Schaaf shifted his attack to the head. From then on it was a case of how long Snyder would last.

Schaaf walloped his opponent about the ring in the fourth round until Snyder was wobbling under the blows. Snyder weathered the round but he was weary as he took his seat as the bell rang.

Schaaf sprang at him in the fifth, straightened him up with a left and then curved a right to the jaw that spilled Snyder on the canvas. He rose to his feet at the count of nine, only to reel into a smash that again settled him on the floor. He was struggling, gamely but futilely, to rise and face the slaughter again when the referee stopped the fight.

The Brewer Hardware team of Harpster will return to its home diamond Sunday after an absence of two weeks to engage in a double header bill with Morral of the Rural Community league. Harpster recently replaced Marion in the league. The Harpster manager hopes to have his first string pitcher ready for action by Sunday. For the last two weeks he has been on the shelf with a sore arm.

The first game will start promptly at 1:30 p. m.

MORE ENTRIES FILED FOR TOURNAMENT AS TIME GROWS SHORT

At Least 12 Teams Certain To Start Softball Play Here Sunday.

With the deadline set for tonight there is still some doubt as to the exact number of teams that will compete in the first annual Central Ohio recreation baseball tournament scheduled to get under way at Lincoln park Sunday. Six entries were received early today from out-of-town teams and several more local entries are expected to be turned in before tonight.

It is certain there will be no less than 12 teams competing in the tournament. It is possible there will be several more ready to start when the Play Ball order is called out Sunday.

Foreign teams entered in the tournament at this time are: Equity Unions of Lima, Firestone Service Stores of Lima, St. Marys Paper Makers, (Auglaize Box Board Co. of St. Marys), Delaware Elks, Mohican Rubber company of Ashland, Ed's Drugs of Crestline, and Beck Barbers of Findlay.

Three Marion Teams

Marion teams which have turned in their entries are: Huber Rollers, City Coal & Service Stations, and Farmers' club, the latter a Marion county league all-star organization. Several other Marion teams are holding entries until today.

Drawings for the first games of the tournament will be made today at 8 p. m. Managers will be notified immediately concerning time of first game. The first game of the tourney is scheduled to get under way at either 12 noon or 12:30 p. m. Sunday. The exact time will be decided at the time of drawings.

Will Name Officials

Umpires for the tournament will also be named at the time of drawings. The officials are expected to be Crissinger of Marion and Johnson of Prospect. Crissinger is president of the city recreation baseball commission. Johnson is well known in Marion softball circles, having been the catcher for some time of the Prospect Firemen of the Commercial league.

An admission fee of 10 cents will be charged for the tournament. Kids will be admitted for half that amount. Lunch and refreshments will be served on the grounds during the tourney.

GRAIN PRICES MOVE HIGHER

Reports of Depleted Reserve Stocks Result in Market Advance.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 12—Grain prices averaged higher early today, influenced by assertions that corn was down to a fuel basis and worth less than coal. A trade authority said old crop reserves of corn were near exhaustion and that stocks of competitive seeds such as oats and barley were unusually small. Opening ⅝ cent off to ⅝ up, corn afterward showed gains all around. Wheat started unchanged to ⅝ cent lower and subsequently scored a general advance.

Strength in the corn market accompanied a statement from a widely known grain expert that even at Illinois country points present prices meant only 22 cents a bushel for new corn after being shelled and delivered to rural elevators. In other great corn areas where higher freight rates prevailed and corn was consequently worth less money, he said farmers were likely to use corn for fuel, as ear corn made an excellent fire. The statement emphasized that the situation in the September delivery of corn could easily become a very bullish market factor and that December corn bought now would show good profits later on.

Arrivals of corn in Chicago totaled but 30 cars, compared with 168 cars a year ago. Talk was current that unless receipts increased, prices of September corn would tighten. It was also urged that the usual frost scare were to be expected. Wheat and oats advanced with corn.

Provisions reflected weakness of hog values.

Tharp Says Public Has Wrong Idea in Gas Case

Assistant General Manager of Ohio Fuel Gas Co. Gives Interview to United Press; Says Misconception and Political Upheavals Distort Picture of Rate Situation.

Misconception and political upheavals have served to develop in the mind of the average citizen a grossly distorted picture of the issues involved in the Logan Gas case, according to E. M. Tharp, assistant general manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. Marion and other Ohio cities have been involved in the Logan Gas case for several years. It is now before the supreme court.

Tharp, in an interview in Columbus today with the United Press, outlined the principles which have been adopted by his firm in connection with litigation over the concern's valuation, and stressed the need for local abritration with regard to reasonable schedule of rates.

He said that when the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. acquired control of the Logan Gas Co. it had no way of anticipating the "distortion and misconception which has arisen from the case." It was then believed, he said, that the issues could be reasonably settled with a natural outlay of capital.

Continues Case

The Ohio Fuel Gas Co., he said, is continuing ligitation relative to Logan Gas leaseholds in the state supreme court merely because it is unwilling to accept the ruling of the public utilities commission in this connection as a precedent.

"The public utilities commission divided the leaseholds of the Logan Gas Co. into four classes," Tharp said. "Of these the first was the acreage yielding gas of Dec. 31, 1924; the second was the acreage which produced gas not used on this date; the third was the acreage on which tests had been made but which had not then been developed for production purposes; fourth was that held under lease but not tested."

"The commission, in its decision, held that the Logan Gas Co. should have no value but on number one leaseholds. Upon our contention that a further value should be allowed, the supreme court ruled that the leasehold valuation be increased about $600,000."

Objects to Precedent

Tharp said that an equitable value should be placed on the leaseholds, which necessitated an enormous yearly outlay. The valuation placed by the utilities commission on leaseholds, Tharp contended, should not be used as a guiding precedent in future gas cases as it would destroy any assurance of permanent services.

Maintenance of the natural gas lands is of vital importance in the future distribution of natural gas in Ohio, he declared, as a reserve supply must be of a necessity or hand.

Tharp pointed out that because the Logan Gas Co. had claimed a valuation of approximately $22,000,000 and the utilities commission only allowed a gross value of about $11,000,000, it was generally assumed that the rates for natural gas would be cut in half following a final ruling by the supreme court.

This, he said, cannot possibly occur, as any amount which the utilities commission might determine as a fair rate of return upon the valuation would need to be added to the operating expense and the outlay for corporation taxes to ascertain the total cost of service.

Service Below Standard

The Ohio Fuel Gas Co., Tharp said, cannot improve service in communities awaiting a final ruling on the Logan Gas case as it is not getting a fair rate of return upon its present investments. He admitted that as a result the equipment in the communities affected was deteriorating and that the services rendered was not up to standard.

"Why should we throw good money after bad?" he asked. "We would be willing to improve service only in a case where a city expressed its willingness to give us a contract which would confirm to the mathematics of the Logan Gas case."

"The people have apparently obtained a wrong impression as to the relation of the valuation to rates. Our mathematics indicate that the average rate should be 76 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. This estimate is based on finding by the utilities commission."

In explanation of his statement concerning local arbitration Tharp said that when the Logan case first began 73 towns having a total of 101,000 meters were involved. Since then, he said, 42 of these have settled the matter of rates by local ordinances and withdrawn from litigation.

The ordinance rates, he pointed out, as a general rule provide for a rate of one dollar for the first 500 cubic feet a month and 60 cents net per 1,000 cubic feet for all in excess of this amount.
